MU Partners With University of Medicine and Dentistry of NJ

JENNA INTERSIMONE
ASSOCIATE NEWS EDITOR

The University signed an agreement with the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (UMDNJ) in March, which will allow qualifying students to enter the online Master’s program in clinical trial sciences at UMDNJ. The partnership will include four years of undergraduate education at the University followed by two to three years at UMDNJ.

In order to qualify, undergraduates must be in their senior year, have at least a 3.0 grade point average (GPA) in their year, have at least a 3.0 grade point average in their senior year, which will transfer over so that they can continue their Master’s education at UMDNJ. Palladino said that this track would be most useful to biology, chemistry, and mathematics majors.

The program itself is a 36-credit Master’s in clinical trial sciences, which has four different tracks that will prepare students for different roles in the pharmaceutical industry. These tracks are regulatory affairs, clinical trial management, biotechnology companies, pharmaceutical companies, and medical device companies all employed students who were trained in clinical trial sciences.

“MU Partners With University of Medicine and Dentistry of NJ” continued on pg. 3

Biototechnology companies, pharmaceutical companies, and medical device companies all employed students who were trained in clinical trial sciences.

Campus Reacts to Coaching Violence

BRITTANY HARBAKER
STAFF WRITER

Each and every day, educational institutions have been working to put a stop to child-hood bullying across the world. From a young age, children and young adults have been exposed to a variety of anti-bullying campaigns, videos, and assemblies, all with the intent of protecting students while they’re in school.

While students are learning about peer bullying, who’s protecting them against the adult bullies of the world? Rutgers University’s 36-credit men’s basketball Head Coach Mike Rice on Wednesday, April 3, after a video aired on ESPN’s “Outside the Lines” of him hitting, shoving and berating his players. Ever since the video went viral, it has prompted scores of reactions across the country.

Professor Claude Taylor of the communication department and athletics professor in residence, said, “This is definitely a sad story. I think that those in positions of authority at Rutgers University lost sight of student well-being.” He continued, “People should have turned their attention to this situa-tion much sooner and it would have not been as complex as it is now.”

Taylor explained, “Schools are supposed to prepare kids for the world, protect them, and keep them safe – not let things like this happen.”

He believes that the firing of Rice and the coaching staff will be a temporary setback for Rutgers basketball, but feels that if they hire the right coach, it could put the school’s head back in the game. “There is a distinct line between motivation and abuse,” he said.

The video shows numerous clips of Rice firing basketballs at players, hitting them in the back, legs, feet and shoulders, pushing players in the face and grabbing them by their jerseys while yanking them around the court. Alongside the basketballs that Rice hurled in the direction of his family, including food, clothing, housing and medical care and necessary social services, and the right to security in the event of unemployment, to freedom to change one’s livelihood in circum-stances of poverty, to freedom from the states. According to Lazroe, “Rights of humans are from birth,” Lazroe said. “You have a right from being human.”

Lazroe recounted an ex-perience he had which he said summed up a problem with healthcare in the United States. According to Lazroe, he was working at a non-profit organization and one of the local hospitals needed office space to discuss a cli-ent’s treatment. The waiting lasted for half-hour, 25 minutes of which was dis-cussing in detail reviewing and analyzing the financial situation of the patient. The patient was supposed to be on the table where the hosts pre-sented their findings on health-care as it currently is, based on the Friends of Socrates stressed throughout their presentation.

The panel began at the head of the table where the hosts pre-sented their findings on health-care as it currently is, based on their experiences and research, in the United States and the statu-ses of healthcare in different na-tions.

“The purpose of this discus-sion is not political,” Lazroe said. “Let me turn your atten-tion to Article 25 of the Universal Rights Declaration.” Article 25 states, “Everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, including food, clothing, housing and medical

_University Celebrates Global Understanding Week_ Presentation Discusses the Recent Outbreaks of Gun Violence

ANGELA CIRIHALO
ASSOCIATE NEWS EDITOR

In conjunction with the Global Understanding Convention last week, Dr. Jennifer Shamrock, communication professor, gave a presentation on gun control in America titled “Fully Loaded” on April 10 at 2:30 pm with the assistance of Joseph Aguilar and Rachael Fisher, University students.

Shamrock provided the audi-ence with the most recent facts about gun violence in America and that they can take a stand in changing our culture through their ac-tions,” said Shamrock.

“I liked that it was a presen-tation that all students could relate to,” said Fisher.

The presentation discussed five truths about guns today that many people are unaware of. The five truths are: 1) a gun inside of a home increases ho-micide, suicide and accidental deaths, 2) many children today are currently living in homes with loaded and unlocked guns, 3) violence is more severe when a gun is used opposed to other weapons, 4) gun laws should be more strictly enforced in America due to the many loopholes that allow people to purchase guns without a background check and 5) enforcing safety laws in America will reduce vi-oence throughout the country.

The United States has the highest gun ownership rate in the world at 88 guns per 100 people according to the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime Small Arms Survey.

Gun Control continued on pg. 4

“Presentation Discusses the Recent Outbreaks of Gun Violence” continued on pg. 4

In accordance with the 2013 Global Understanding Convention, “Friends of Socrates” host-ed a panel discussion in the Fun-nel Boardroom in Bey Hall on Thursday, April 11 at 1:00 pm where they posed the question, “Why can’t we all have access to the best health care in the world, right here in America?”

The panel was led by Dr. Bo-jana Beric, professor of nursing and health studies and Co-Di-rector of the Center for Human and Community Wellness; Tony Lazroe, Director of Grants and Contracts; Claude Taylor, professor of communication and the Assistant Director of the Insti-tute for Global Understanding.

According to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, a copy of which was presented to students as they settled around the conference table, “All hu-man beings are born with equal and inalienable rights and fund-amental freedoms.” It was this assertion that the Friends of Socrates stressed throughout their presentation.

“The purpose of this discus-sion is not political,” Lazroe said. “Let me turn your atten-tion to Article 25 of the Human Rights Declaration.” Article 25 states, “Everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, including food, clothing, housing and medical Care and necessary social services, and the right to security in the event of unemployment, to freedom to change one’s livelihood in circum-stances of poverty, to freedom from the states. According to Lazroe,

“Rights of humans are from birth,” Lazroe said. “You have a right from being human.”

Lazroe recounted an ex-perience he had which he said summed up a problem with healthcare in the United States. According to Lazroe, he was working at a non-profit organization and one of the local hospitals needed office space to discuss a cli-ent’s treatment. The waiting lasted for half-hour, 25 minutes of which was dis-cussing in detail reviewing and analyzing the financial situation of the patient. The

Healthcare continued on pg. 4

MU Partners With University of Medicine and Dentistry of NJ

JENNA INTERSIMONE
ASSOCIATE NEWS EDITOR

The University signed an agreement with the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (UMDNJ) in March, which will allow qualifying students to enter the online Master’s program in clinical trial sciences at UMDNJ. The partnership will include four years of undergraduate education at the University followed by two to three years at UMDNJ.

In order to qualify, undergraduates must be in their senior year, have at least a 3.0 grade point average (GPA) in their major, and obtain a recommenda-tion from either Dr. Michael Palladino, Dean of the School of Science, or the Pre-Professional Health Advisory Committee. Students can then take up to six Master’s level courses dur-ing their senior year, which will transfer over so that they can continue their Master’s education at UMDNJ. Palladino said that this track would be most

“MU Partners With University of Medicine and Dentistry of NJ” continued on pg. 3

Biototechnology companies, pharmaceutical companies, and medical device companies all employed students who were trained in clinical trial sciences.

“Campus Reacts to Coaching Violence” continued on pg. 3

In accordance with the 2013 Global Understanding Convention, “Friends of Socrates” host-ed a panel discussion in the Fun-nel Boardroom in Bey Hall on Thursday, April 11 at 1:00 pm where they posed the question, “Why can’t we all have access to the best health care in the world, right here in America?”

The panel was led by Dr. Bo-jana Beric, professor of nursing and health studies and Co-Di-rector of the Center for Human and Community Wellness; Tony Lazroe, Director of Grants and Contracts; Claude Taylor, professor of communication and the Assistant Director of the Insti-tute for Global Understanding.

According to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, a copy of which was presented to students as they settled around the conference table, “All hu-man beings are born with equal and inalienable rights and fund-amental freedoms.” It was this assertion that the Friends of Socrates stressed throughout their presentation.

“The purpose of this discus-sion is not political,” Lazroe said. “Let me turn your atten-tion to Article 25 of the Human Rights Declaration.” Article 25 states, “Everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, including food, clothing, housing and medical Care and necessary social services, and the right to security in the event of unemployment, to freedom to change one’s livelihood in circum-stances of poverty, to freedom from the states. According to Lazroe,

“Rights of humans are from birth,” Lazroe said. “You have a right from being human.”

Lazroe recounted an ex-perience he had which he said summed up a problem with healthcare in the United States. According to Lazroe, he was working at a non-profit organization and one of the local hospitals needed office space to discuss a cli-ent’s treatment. The waiting lasted for half-hour, 25 minutes of which was dis-cussing in detail reviewing and analyzing the financial situation of the patient. The Students came together under a bright blue sky to share poetry on Shadow Lawn during the Global Understanding Convention. On Wednesday, April 10, CommWorks hosted a “Poetry Slam” to encourage dialogue about global issues. About 30 people came out to support the event, which covered topics from a broken heart to race and gender. Both original and published works were read.

Katie Meyer, senior and vice president of CommWorks, said, “It’s about building community.” Those who attended had the opportunity to listen to one another and understand issues regarding a variety of topics. The attraction of the “Poetry Slam” is that people can write about something emotional or controversial and say it “just a poem.” Meyer added, “We are just trying to bring people together.”

Meyer wrote the poem “Glass Girls” after viewing a video highlighting issues women have in our society and the idea of “glass ceiling.” Her poem talked about unequal pay between men and women and how the government is making decisions about women’s bodies without birth control and abortion.

“I am really interested in what it means to be a woman and a girl in this society,” Meyer said. She explained that people often say that things are better now and that things are not like that, but it’s really not,” she added.

As a part of the “Poetry Slam” winners, Nick Sommons, read a poem written by an African-American woman. Sommons recited “I’m a Hip-Hop Cheerleader” by Jessica Care Moore to gain a deeper understanding of others and their viewpoint and feel compassion for their expressed ideas.

“No rap is about freedom, artists rap about material things and, more importantly, rap has materialized women which is what the author of this poem wants to change.” Still, the message was a wake-up and from this, we realize that hip-hop has changed.

Although there were laughs throughout the reading, the poem written by Moore communicated a deeper meaning. The irony of the race and gender difference between Moore and Sommons was not lost on the crowd, but added a unique element of humor and contradiction. “Who better to bring this issue to light than a man, who rejects this idea of materializing women and says, ‘That’s not okay by any means,’” Sommons said.

The event also brought out first-time poet Caroline Anzarouth who read an original poem titled “Make Them Stop.” She shared how the experience was "illuminating" and allowed her to justify her feelings.

“We invite poetry, we gain the confidence to really grasp those feelings and to acknowledge that they are ours,” Anzarouth said. The ‘Poetry Slam’ involved no harsh judgment, critique, or embarrassment of any sort; it was just a group of people supporting each other’s thoughts and feelings and I think that’s pretty cool.”

Of the 18 participants who read poetry, Anzarouth’s mother, Jacqueline Anzarouth, also came to the event and read her own original poem, “Words.” Jacqueline wrote several poems and eventually shared some with her daughters. “When I told my mom about CommWorks’ ‘Poetry Slam,’ I saw her eyes light up,” Caroline Anzarouth explained.” My mom is always supporting me and cheering me on so I wanted the chance to do the same for her. It was a special experience for us to share together.”

The idea behind the “Poetry Slam” in general is to share poetry with everyone. It does not take an English degree or special education to write, read or relate to poetry. It is something for everyone, no matter what his or her background, race, or gender, and one does not need a trained ear to appreciate the spoken word.

“Different types of people-including students, professors, and family members—had the chance to get up on stage and recite poetry on any topic that was meaningful to them,” Anzarouth said. “Some of them explicitly related to issues of history and culture while others did so more indirectly. Either way, it didn’t matter. All that mattered was that we not only listened to, but really heard each other.”

In honor of their son Raymond, who passed away in October of 2011, Thomas and Roseann Michelli have established an endowed scholarship to be awarded to a communication major with an interest in sports announcing. Raymond, also called Ray, graduated from the University in 2000 with a Bachelor’s degree in communication and a strong passion for sports. Although a lifelong battle with Duchenne muscular dystrophy separated Raymond from participating in sports, he pursued his love for sports in other ways. This passion was so profound that Kevin Calahan, University’s head football coach, called and offered him a position as the team’s statistician, which Ray proudly took, his father said.

“Ray’s experience at Monmouth was pretty special. He got to go to all of the football team’s games, and was very insistent about his obligation,” said Thomas Michel, a member of the University’s Board of Trustees, “He really enjoyed the Athletics and Communication programs.”

In addition to athletics, Ray also worked at WMIX as both a DJ and a sportscaster. The hosts of Ray’s sports announcing show were referred to as “The Crew.” Roseann Michelli, Ray’s mother, said, “Ray did so much at Monmouth. It was like his second home,” she said.

“Ray was a delight as a student. He brought passion and engagement to the classroom, and students and faculty alike were inspired by his dedication to his craft,” said Cavallaro. “The Board of Trustees, ‘The really enjoyed the Athletics and Communication programs.”

One University member who grew particularly close with Ray over the years was Chris Cavallaro, professor of radio/television. Cavallaro taught a course in communication and a member of the Board of Trustees, “The really enjoyed the Athletics and Communication programs.”

Cavallaro said. “The Board of Trustees, ‘The really enjoyed the Athletics and Communication programs.”

The first scholarship will be awarded on May 5 at the annual Communication Awards ceremony by both Thomas and Roseann Michelli. The recipient of this $2,050 scholarship will be chosen by a committee of three faculty members.

“arshing will be an ongoing way for us to keep Ray’s legacy alive,” said Cavallaro. Even after Ray graduated in 2000, he still came to WMIX to do air shifts. Ray was also a frequent guest at the Communication Awards every April, and had only stopped attending a few years prior to his passing. As stated in a previous Outlook article published on October 26, 2011, “To award a scholarship will be an ongoing way for us to keep Ray’s legacy alive.”

Thomas Michelli, Member of the Board of Trustees

“Keeping the ‘Poetry Slam’ going will be an ongoing way for us to keep Ray’s legacy alive,” said Thoma- as Michelli. “This is something that every year we can meet the awarded student and be more in- volved.”
The American Marketing Association (AMA), an organization which strives to advocate the marketing profession by providing evidence from their 250 chapters across the nation, has officially joined the University and AMA communities as of March 2013, thanks to founder Michelle Rocereto, the University’s junior business administration major with a concentration in marketing.

Rocereto began the process to create an AMA chapter on campus last March. “It was such a no-brainer,” the AMA chapter President, Judy Ottenstroer, explained, the benefits of being a member in marketing associations affiliated with it was a no-brainer: Network, gain access to the types of benefits of being a member of a chapter, which re- quired involvement in a variety of meetings purchased at marketingpower.com, are podcasts, blogs and internships. One way to keep up with events and panel discussions with professionals. Cusanelli said, “It is all about relationships, to ensure your self from your peers and it’s a great resource for networking.”

Michelle Rocereto, junior business administration major with a concentration in marketing, is a member of the AMA New Jersey, said that, in his opinion, the most significant thing about this organization is that the University is currently working partnerships to medical school and the University. “We are just so proud of him.”

Drs. Barbara Reagor, the Director of Human Resources for Student Employment, states that the criteria for the job in choosing the winner involves a combination of qualifications, such as reliability, initiative, quality of work, and contribution to the University.”

Students aren’t the only ones looking forward to this year. The Supervisor of the Year award went to Neva Lozada, the Assistant Director of the University Partners with UMDNJ for MS Degree in Clinical Trials Science.

UDMNJ continued from pag e1, and recruitment, clinical trials informatics, and drug safety and pharmacovigilance. The nine-credit core and 27 credits of specialty courses. Students trained in these areas can work for biotechnology companies, pharmaceutical companies, and medical device companies. According to Palladino, many of these companies do not have large clinical trials divisions, they enter into contracts with clinical research organizations (CROs), which are companies who employ staff who specialize in running clinical trials. Often, these companies allow their employees to move about the country from project to project, which makes the field ideal for a student who enjoys travel. Also, besides human clinical trials, CROs also work on other types of clinical trials, such as the development of drugs and medical devices.

Palladino also said, “I interact frequently with industry leaders from biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies and one of their greatest hiring needs in New Jersey is hiring people trained in clinical trials. When a company develops a medical device or drug, the product has to go through the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to go through a series of human trials before it can ultimately be approved for sale. On average, this can take from five to nine years or more and over $1 billion.”

He continued, “All stages of clinical trial review require input from a variety of experts, from regulatory experts, to pharmacists, to clinical experts. Because of increased regulatory demands by the FDA, companies simply cannot afford to hire qualified personnel working in this field.”

While still studying clinical trial sciences, students also have the opportunity to work to design trials, our medical technology degree and hospitals, analyze results, and develop appropriate paperwork for FDA filing.

Barbara Gladson, Director of the Biopharma Educational Initiative and CMO, School of Business Administration, UMDNJ, said that this agreement is beneficial for both schools. “Our program is completely online and we do not require interviews or visits on the campuses from all over the country. So an application may look stellar but sometimes the student 5 is not. So the fact that these students are recommended by MU feels a speaks volumes,” she said. Dr. Julie O’Sullivan Maillet, interim dean of UMDNJ, said in a press release to the University, “We are excited for Monmouth students to be able to take one or two courses here, which will be added to their transcripts and then possibly decide to become clinical research professionals. It is a great opportunity for both schools.”

Palladino said, “We have a good relationship and good partnerships with UMDNJ for programs such as our medical technology degree and we are working with them for future partnerships to medical school and dental school.” He also mentioned that the University is currently working on developing partnerships with several other medical schools as well. Currently, the clinical trial sciences program is not partnered with any other schools besides MU because it is very new, however in the future, UMDNJ will be partnered with the University of Montreal. He also has a role in sharing curricu- lum with them as they are developing the first Master’s in drug safety in Canada. Also, UMDNJ will be transferred to Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey, effective July 1, 2013. The School of Science offers un- dergraduate degree programs in biology, chemistry, mathematics, computer science, and software engineering and MS graduate programs in computer science and software engineering. For more information on the programs, contact Palladino at 732-571-3421 or visit www.monmouth.edu/science.
Students Listen to Music From All Around the World

"Music Around the World" was a Global Understanding Convention event in which international forms of music were played on Jen Hom's radio show on WMXC.

What's Next?
When: April 10
Where: Stony Brook University in New York

The "Friends of Socrates" is a club of students who take a class with the same name. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy.

The The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

People in the U.S. expect the best care, but that's not a reality. There is a fine line between efficiency and cost.

MITCHELL PARKER
Freshman

The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

Healthcare from the perspective of a patient.

What's Next?
When: April 10
Where: Stony Brook University in New York

The "Friends of Socrates" is a club of students who take a class with the same name. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy.

The The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

People in the U.S. expect the best care, but that's not a reality. There is a fine line between efficiency and cost.

MITCHELL PARKER
Freshman

The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

Global Understanding Convention Tackles Gun Control

Gun Control continued from pg. 1

According to the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, Arms Survey. Areas that hold the highest firearm murder rates include countries in the Americas, Asia, and the Middle East.

The presentation discussed the recent tragedies in America as a result of gun violence. In response to the tragedies, gun control advocates have actually increased. A FOX News clip shown concluded that President Obama’s stand on gun control was a "good first step". The 2012, American citizens tried to buy 2 million guns. FOX revealed that there are 2 million guns sold in America than there are gas stations. In December, 2012, there were 51,000 gun stores, 75,000 grocery stores, 14,000 Walgreens, and 15,000 Starbucks in the U.S.

In the eleven years following the Columbine High School shooting in Colorado, a total of 32,108 children and teens died from homicides, suicides and accidents, according to the Children Defense Fund. "Approximately 117 classes filled with 25 children dying every year for eleven years."

Each of the five gun truths discussed in the presentation used relevant facts and true stories to provide the audience with a clear understanding of gun violence in America. The first gun truth explained how gun violence is related to the risk of homicide, suicide and accidental deaths among families when guns are in the home. The second gun truth explained the importance of keeping guns out of reach of the buyers. "I hope that we can do our part to make sure that guns are not allowed to purchase firearms."

We're all in this together. When I listen to music, read or appreciate art, or even advertising from other countries, I definitely confirm my observation that we're all just trying to figure things out and do our best.

JENNIFER SHAMROCK
Communication Professor

"Two-thirds of children with gun-owning parents handled guns in their homes without their parent's knowledge."

The "Friends of Socrates" is a club of students who take a class with the same name. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy.

The The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

Healthcare from the perspective of a patient.

What's Next?
When: April 10
Where: Stony Brook University in New York

The "Friends of Socrates" is a club of students who take a class with the same name. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy.

The The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

Healthcare from the perspective of a patient.

What's Next?
When: April 10
Where: Stony Brook University in New York

The "Friends of Socrates" is a club of students who take a class with the same name. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy.

The The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

Healthcare from the perspective of a patient.

What's Next?
When: April 10
Where: Stony Brook University in New York

The "Friends of Socrates" is a club of students who take a class with the same name. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy.

The The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

Healthcare from the perspective of a patient.

What's Next?
When: April 10
Where: Stony Brook University in New York

The "Friends of Socrates" is a club of students who take a class with the same name. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy.

The The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

Healthcare from the perspective of a patient.

What's Next?
When: April 10
Where: Stony Brook University in New York

The "Friends of Socrates" is a club of students who take a class with the same name. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy.

The The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

Healthcare from the perspective of a patient.

What's Next?
When: April 10
Where: Stony Brook University in New York

The "Friends of Socrates" is a club of students who take a class with the same name. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy.

The The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

Healthcare from the perspective of a patient.

What's Next?
When: April 10
Where: Stony Brook University in New York

The "Friends of Socrates" is a club of students who take a class with the same name. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy.

The The MU Community Learns About American Healthcare

Healthcare from the perspective of a patient.

What's Next?
When: April 10
Where: Stony Brook University in New York

The "Friends of Socrates" is a club of students who take a class with the same name. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy. The club is run by the students and has a president, who is normally a senior. The club is open to all students and has about 50 members. It meets every other week and discusses various topics related to Socrates and his philosophy.
MONMOUTH UNIVERSITY’S CENTER FOR THE ARTS CONCERT & WORKSHOP WITH
ROGER McGUINN
COFOUNDER OF
The Byrds
FRI. APRIL 19 AT 8 PM
POLLAK THEATRE
PLAY GUITAR WITH A LEGEND!
WORKSHOP & GUITAR CIRCLE
THURS. APRIL 18 AT 1 PM
WILSON AUDITORIUM
$20 FEE OR FREE WITH TICKET
TO APRIL 19TH CONCERT
PLEASE CALL:
732.263.5715 TO REGISTER
CONCERT & WORKSHOP
FREE FOR MU STUDENTS!
732.263.6889 • WWW.MONMOUTH.EDU/ARTS
MONMOUTH UNIVERSITY
WHERE LEADERS LOOK FORWARD

Administrative Services & Facilities Management Student Employees
Thank you for all of your hard work and support of our departments.

Jordan Gamal Ashley  Robert Krienke
James Boynton  Daniel Lahaye
James Carney  Oscar Lopez
Tatiana Castro  Eric Loukites
Erin Clark  Matthew Marciano
Ryan Coburn  Ashley Marquez
William Corfield III  Joshua Mas
Kelly Cornellison  Daniel McMorris
Ashley Crean  George Mroz
Paul Derkitis  Melissa Neves
Andrew Dichiara  Henry Okonski
Amanda Fasano  Stefan Oliver
Chanel Gomez  Miguel Rios
William Grant  Victoria Rodriguez
Tiffany Hackett  Bradley Rubin
Jennifer Jamieson  Jacob Skovronek
Nicole Johnson  Eric Szcodny
Daniel Jurkovic  Kyle Vacaro
Uma Kahn  Laura Williams
Tevin Kirby-Stewart  Daniel Zagury

RELAY FOR LIFE SUPPORTER

JOIN THE WALK OF FAME
SUPPORT DESPERATE MAMAS
50/50 RAFFLE | April 22-26
Student Center | 12 pm - 2 pm
Tickets are $5 each
Contact any Desperate Mama for your ticket today.

Winner will receive 50% of the amount received for all tickets sold, the other 50% benefits The American Cancer Society Relay for Life. Winner will be selected April 26 at 8:00 pm at the MAC Monmouth University. Do not have to be present to win.

Relay For Life helps communities celebrate the lives of people who have battled cancer, remember loved ones lost, and fight back against the disease. The Relay is composed of numerous teams who compete against each other to collect the funds that benefit The American Cancer Society’s fight for a cure.

For more information on The Desperate Mamas Raffle, contact Sandy Brown at ext. 3481.

DESPERATE MAMAS TEAM MEMBERS: Diane McQuay, Donna Mancini, Sandy Brown, Evelyn Herrera, Christina DeBlenc, Kris Simoes, Linda Mussara, Sheila McAllister, Mary Harris, Tina Johnson, Eileen Jones.
As University students, most of us have come in contact with and formed friendships with the graduate assistants who are employed with the departments or activities that we each choose to participate in as undergraduates.

In theory, these graduate students simply work at the University to help facilitate certain tasks and work towards their own higher education. However, does a greater purpose for these graduate assistants exist? In the midst of universities and businesses attempting to downsize their costs, how important is it for the University to employ graduate assistants? According to The Outlook staff, graduate assistants are more than just a face in the corner typing away at a computer or performing some mundane task. Instead, it is a give-and-take relationship in which the graduate assistant often takes the place of a teacher. Undergraduate students, who are much closer in age to the graduate students than they would be to one of their own professors, receive insight from people who were in the same position not too long ago.

It is easy to learn from a graduate student who has “been-there-done-that,” who has already entered the “real world,” has walked away from that, who has already entered the graduate students, who are much closer in age to the graduate assistant often takes the place of a teacher. Undergraduate students, who are much closer in age to the graduate students than they would be to one of their own professors, receive insight from people who were in the same position not too long ago.

As undergraduate students, we are not close to that “real world” as we may think we are, but our graduate assistants serve as our link to what will soon be our own experience. Most of them hold other full-time positions in entry-level jobs that we will soon enter. They can tell us what it is like to make that commute and what will make-or-break our résumé or our next job interview. Sometimes they can even help us break into the field of a certain company themselves. One of our own past graduate assistants, Chris Netta, was incredibly good with graphic design and could take a concept we were considering for a back page or a banner on the front page and seamlessly translate it into a smooth, clean-cut image in less time than it would take the entire Outlook staff to figure out (and we’re not half bad).

With him gone, we have to wander the Internet in search of ways to solve our technological and design issues, which usually are only partially, if at all, successful. We all contribute and toil with Adobe programs to do the work he used to do, although we miss him dearly and wish that we still had his extensive knowledge on our side. Morganne Firmane, one of our current graduate assistants and former Outlook Entertainment section editor, has a fantastic aesthetic and editorial eye and we do not even consider the option of The Outlook without her giving it a fine-tuning beforehand. She always has interesting ideas for layout design, captions, headlines, or photographs. If anyone ever has an editing or AP style question, she always has the go-to person. She can always catch mistakes that some of our younger copy editors cannot due to her high level of expertise.

Graduate students are not only utilized by The Outlook, but other departments as well like the Communication department, Student Services, Athletics, and Residential Life to name a few. As undergraduate students, some of whom are seniors and juniors, we would like to think we “know it all” and we can swiftly and efficiently run an organization. Unfortunately, the truth is that besides our expert advisors and supporters, we also need graduate assistants on our side to help us through the day-by-day issues and take us to where our organizations need to be to emerge successful. Also, we cannot forget that these positions are not solely to serve the departments and organizations they work for. Without the positions, some graduate students may not be able to afford an MU Master’s degree. It is obvious that there would most likely be less enrollment in the graduate programs of a university with less graduate student enrollment, what will this say about us?

It is easy to learn from a graduate student who has “been-there-done-that,” who has already entered the “real world,” has walked away from that, who has already entered the graduate students, who are much closer in age to the graduate assistant often takes the place of a teacher. Undergraduate students, who are much closer in age to the graduate students than they would be to one of their own professors, receive insight from people who were in the same position not too long ago.

As undergraduate students, we are not close to that “real world” as we may think we are, but our graduate assistants serve as our link to what will soon be our own experience. Most of them hold other full-time positions in entry-level jobs that we will soon enter. They can tell us what it is like to make that commute and what will make-or-break our résumé or our next job interview. Sometimes they can even help us break into the field of a certain company themselves. One of our own past graduate assistants, Chris Netta, was incredibly good with graphic design and could take a concept we were considering for a back page or a banner on the front page and seamlessly translate it into a smooth, clean-cut image in less time than it would take the entire Outlook staff to figure out (and we’re not half bad).

With him gone, we have to wander the Internet in search of ways to solve our technological and design issues, which usually are only partially, if at all, successful. We all contribute and toil with Adobe programs to do the work he used to do, although we miss him dearly and wish that we still had his extensive knowledge on our side. Morganne Firmane, one of our current graduate assistants and former Outlook Entertainment section editor, has a fantastic aesthetic and editorial eye and we do not even consider the option of The Outlook without her giving it a fine-tuning beforehand. She always has interesting ideas for layout design, captions, headlines, or photographs. If anyone ever has an editing or AP style question, she always has the go-to person. She can always catch mistakes that some of our younger copy editors cannot due to her high level of expertise.

Graduate students are not only utilized by The Outlook, but other departments as well like the Communication department, Student Services, Athletics, and Residential Life to name a few. As undergraduate students, some of whom are seniors and juniors, we would like to think we “know it all” and we can swiftly and efficiently run an organization. Unfortunately, the truth is that besides our expert advisors and supporters, we also need graduate assistants on our side to help us through the day-by-day issues and take us to where our organizations need to be to emerge successful. Also, we cannot forget that these positions are not solely to serve the departments and organizations they work for. Without the positions, some graduate students may not be able to afford an MU Master’s degree. It is obvious that there would most likely be less enrollment in the graduate programs of a university with less graduate student enrollment, what will this say about us?

As undergraduate students, some of whom are seniors and juniors, we would like to think we “know it all” and we can swiftly and efficiently run an organization. Unfortunately, the truth is that besides our expert advisors and supporters, we also need graduate assistants on our side to help us through the day-by-day issues and take us to where our organizations need to be to emerge successful. Also, we cannot forget that these positions are not solely to serve the departments and organizations they work for. Without the positions, some graduate students may not be able to afford an MU Master’s degree. It is obvious that there would most likely be less enrollment in the graduate programs of a university with less graduate student enrollment, what will this say about us?

As undergraduate students, some of whom are seniors and juniors, we would like to think we “know it all” and we can swiftly and efficiently run an organization. Unfortunately, the truth is that besides our expert advisors and supporters, we also need graduate assistants on our side to help us through the day-by-day issues and take us to where our organizations need to be to emerge successful. Also, we cannot forget that these positions are not solely to serve the departments and organizations they work for. Without the positions, some graduate students may not be able to afford an MU Master’s degree. It is obvious that there would most likely be less enrollment in the graduate programs of a university with less graduate student enrollment, what will this say about us?

As undergraduate students, some of whom are seniors and juniors, we would like to think we “know it all” and we can swiftly and efficiently run an organization. Unfortunately, the truth is that besides our expert advisors and supporters, we also need graduate assistants on our side to help us through the day-by-day issues and take us to where our organizations need to be to emerge successful. Also, we cannot forget that these positions are not solely to serve the departments and organizations they work for. Without the positions, some graduate students may not be able to afford an MU Master’s degree. It is obvious that there would most likely be less enrollment in the graduate programs of a university with less graduate student enrollment, what will this say about us?
Senioritis: The Contagious Epidemic

Students Combat the Temptation to be Lazy During the Last Few Weeks of School

VICTORIA JORDAN
STOP WASTING

As the semester soon comes to a close, warmer weather is on its way also. The days are longer, the class outside, and of course of the tease of summer vacation. Cold weather is over, and the 60s and 70s of year is supposed to be. It’s pleasant, but it also seems to become a type of dread for seniors. Everyone knows, specifically my female peers.

Almost like clockwork, every year girls will start their “summer diets” in order to look attractive in summer. “I have often been referred to as ‘senioritis’. As a senior graduating in May, I have seen women’s desire to lose weight in a short amount of time, but they may end up severely repercussions. Those who struggle with bulimia can suffer from vocal cord damage, heart damage to internal organs. Anorexia sufferers can show side effects as kidney failure, fatigue, heart problems and paralysis. There are also more serious long-term effects, including higher risk of anxiety and depression as well as drug and alcohol abuse. A girl in my class, who has suffered for years of low self-esteem when it came to body image, I know that that skip- ping meals or not getting enough sleep because there was so many other things that I could be doing rather than loath- ing myself because I did not look like a Victoria’s Secret model.

During every spring, it is a typical tradition to go in order to look attractive in summer. Clothing. While I know that I have had my share of getting into my bath- ing suits that have been crammed in the closet during the past few months, I have seen women’s desire to be attractive go overboard with crash diets and exercising excessively.

Before you continue reading, I would like say that there is nothing wrong with losing weight or exercis- ing to stay healthy. Those who maintain a regular healthy lifestyle, I ap- preciate your commitment to eating right and exercising properly.

The following is an ex- plain for the unhealthy dieting, which women and men in our culture suc- cess to every end and means to get thin. Children may think that they are getting by try- ing to lose weight in a short amount of time, but they are doing harm to their bodies.

According to the National Associa- tion of Anorexia Nervosa and Associ- ated Disorders (NAANAD), out of 91 percent of college women surveyed, there are many who believe that they are in a normal weight range, but they are in reality severely underweight. The NAANAD reported that an estimated 10-15 percent of people suffer from anorexia or bulimia. Even children as young as 11 are insecure about their bodies and desire to be thinner due to the media’s interpretation of the per- fect physique. These issues affect over 24 million people of all ages, races and genders.

Seniors are almost guaranteed to contract this disease at any point between September and May. To their advantage, it is ac- ceptable although definitely not encouraged by parents and teach- ers. For many, the stigma is that they have many seniors when I say that the biggest struggles lie within our ability to focus. Sometimes we choose to skip class, but even if we are present, we find it difficult to give the sub- ject matter and the professor our full attention. The symptoms above, I think we are most prone to the following: a) lack of motivation b) a generally dismissive attitude.

Seniors like to think that this is due to the lack of motivation because they have a case of seniorsitis. Seniors are usually very successful, but they cannot be operated. Although they have the best of both worlds, being upper- classmen, and having the feeling of leaving their wardrobe to college can be a struggle.

However, putting in a lot of ef- fort during the school year makes one exhausted come April. From the list of symptoms above, they are most prone to an excessive sweating of wearing pants and the occasional lack of studying (be- cause studying was your routine during the block. Honestly, I wish I could take my books out of my backpack and go to the library because I cannot think about school.

Senioritis is a phenomenon that can spread like wildfire, depending on the kind of people with whom you associate. We all live and breathe in the college setting. There are many ways of how. However, making it a consistent habit, espe- cially if you are an underclassman, will do more harm than good. If you find yourself contradicting loving friends, try to eliminate one of the symptoms above and I promise that will make these next four weeks of classes and exams that much more tolerable.
An event that encompassed both imperative world problems and promoting global understanding was the presentation titled, "Politics: My Experience in Cairo from Revolution to Reforms," held on April 25, 2013. Gentleman with the title of "GEOOGREY CLOEPFIL" elucidated the audience on his first-hand account of the Arby riot, revolution, and promoting global understanding. This presentation took place on Tuesday, April 9 at 7:25 in the Phillips-Anderson.

"House of Cards" is no longer safe when the fighting began, tear gas appeared, and ambulances were all over.

JACQUELYN CERSONTINO CONTRIBUTING WRITER

"House of Cards" is set to begin shooting their second season. The first season of the show was released on February 1, 2013, with all 13 episodes put up for access at once.

Based off of the popular British series, "House of Cards," the American series, "House of Cards," is set to begin on Netflix on March 1, 2013. This series is set to begin shooting their second season. The first season of the show was released on February 1, 2013, with all 13 episodes put up for access at once.

"House of Cards" follows the political career of Frank Underwood (Spacey) as he takes over his position as President and begins to manipulate the system in order to begin a new political order.

The character, Frank Underwood (Kevin Spacey) has no desire for failure, and he always makes sure that he cares about the amount of power he can obtain. The desirable actions that he takes in order to increase his political power and the reactions portrayed by the audience make him a material to look into what the political scandalous world is like.

The episode begins with the news stating that the President is dead. The new President, Underwood, is shown to be a strategic thinker who manipulates the system in order to start a new political order.

"House of Cards" is the Ace in the Deck on Netflix

Netflix’s hit series, "House of Cards," is set to begin shooting their second season. The first season of the show was released on February 1, 2013, with all 13 episodes put up for access at once.

Based off of the popular British series, "House of Cards," the American series, "House of Cards," is set to begin on Netflix on March 1, 2013. This series is set to begin shooting their second season. The first season of the show was released on February 1, 2013, with all 13 episodes put up for access at once.

"House of Cards" follows the political career of Frank Underwood (Spacey) as he takes over his position as President and begins to manipulate the system in order to begin a new political order.

The character, Frank Underwood (Kevin Spacey) has no desire for failure, and he always makes sure that he cares about the amount of power he can obtain. The desirable actions that he takes in order to increase his political power and the reactions portrayed by the audience make him a material to look into what the political scandalous world is like.

The episode begins with the news stating that the President is dead. The new President, Underwood, is shown to be a strategic thinker who manipulates the system in order to start a new political order.

"House of Cards" is the Ace in the Deck on Netflix

Netflix’s hit series, "House of Cards," is set to begin shooting their second season. The first season of the show was released on February 1, 2013, with all 13 episodes put up for access at once.

Based off of the popular British series, "House of Cards," the American series, "House of Cards," is set to begin on Netflix on March 1, 2013. This series is set to begin shooting their second season. The first season of the show was released on February 1, 2013, with all 13 episodes put up for access at once.
Brittany Hardaker

Alexandria Fitzgerald, a senior communication major, said she was encouraged by the opportunity that the IGU and the University’s Institute for Global Understanding (IGU) offers. "I believe that there aren’t too many people who are aware of the United Nations and the opportunities that the U.N. offers," she said.

She continued, "Many people pay a lot of money to go to these conferences and require high security clearances, so it was amazing that I could take advantage of such a great opportunity to attend the U.N. with the school." Fitzgerald explained that the U.N. is a “global initiative that invites students to make their voices heard.”

Geoff Cleopft, a graduate student in Public Policy, explained, "Alexandria’s presentation definitely was important as the IGU and the program allows pathways towards careers in the organization, students collectively try to solve world issues in a classroom-like setting.

Alexandria Davi, a senior business marketing major who attended the U.N. as a U.N. student ambassador, gave a presentation on her experience as a U.N. student ambassador as part of the Global Understanding Convention held this past week.

She explained that while most student involvement with the U.N. is serious and focused on the future of the United Nations, her presentation kept the audience that in a globalized world, it is important to know how to network.

Fitzgerald added that the IGU at our University is a recognized (non-governmental organization) that is required to send an annual report to the U.N. and monmouth academicians, the "University's Institute for Global Understanding (IGU), formerly the University's Institute for Global Understanding (IGU), formerly the United Nations Academic Impact Initiative (UNAI)," she explained. UNAI is "a global initiative that invites institutions of higher education with the United Nations," the UNAI website, is for participating universities to actively demonstrate support for at least one of those principles each year. Some of those principles include: "a commitment to the principles inherent in the U.N. charter, the protection of human rights including freedom of inquiry, opinion and speech; and a commitment to the principles of multilateralism and universality for all regardless of gender, race, religion or ethnicity."

Fitzgerald explained how she was able to meet many world officials and contacts established while working for the U.N.'s campaign. "The U.N. gives students a chance to put their dedication to their education into practice."

She described how she was able to meet U.N. Security General Ban Ki-moon, and read a signed copy of his book, "Building a Better Future for All." She has also met with ambassadors on the country.

Fitzgerald explained that while many worry about the tough times they might encounter. It was then that she realized, after graduation, the U.N. is concerned about the working environment for students and providing a place for them to shoot for the career of their dreams.

According to Susan Bucks, chair of the Department of Political Science and former member of the League of Student Nations, the University is a part of that process. The University is a program that offers students a platform for higher education that grants degrees or their equivalent. According to the League of Student Nations, the University is to associate the United Nations with institutions of higher learning throughout the world.

"The U.N. is the supreme international organization of the world," Fitzgerald said.

"Their involvement with the United Nations is a result of the Institute for Global Understanding, a position aimed at acquiring a larger audience and promoting the organization on a global scale," she explained. "It was created to get students involved. The program ties together the U.N. and Monmouth academicians, she said.

Throughout the presentation, Fitzgerald encouraged the campus community to get involved with the IGU. As such, she said, "We'd like it if many people know about some of the great opportunities offered by our University." Fitzgerald explained that she is a member of the U.N. Student Alliance, an organization that follows pathways towards careers in the organization, students collectively try to solve world issues in a classroom-like setting.

Fitzgerald then reminded the audience that in a globalized world, making the world a better place through education, cultural dialogue are all achievable through education.

According to the U.N. website, the stated aims of the U.N. are similar to those of the IGU and that they promote and encourage respect for international law, security, economic development, social progress, human rights, civil rights and liberties, political freedoms and the achievement of worldwide peace and security.

The U.N. was founded in 1945, shortly after World War II, to re-establish the League of Nations and to prevent wars between countries and to provide a platform for global dialogue. Since its creation, the U.N. has expanded to include member states.

He explained how the U.N. is a "global initiative that invites institutions of higher education that grants degrees or their equivalent. According to the League of Student Nations, the University is a part of that process. The University is a program that offers students a platform for higher education that grants degrees or their equivalent. According to the League of Student Nations, the University is to associate the United Nations with institutions of higher learning throughout the world."

"The U.N. is the supreme international organization of the world," Fitzgerald said.

"Their involvement with the United Nations is a result of the Institute for Global Understanding, a position aimed at acquiring a larger audience and promoting the organization on a global scale," she explained. "It was created to get students involved. The program ties together the U.N. and Monmouth academicians, she said.

Throughout the presentation, Fitzgerald encouraged the campus community to get involved with the IGU. As such, she said, "We'd like it if many people know about some of the great opportunities offered by our University." Fitzgerald explained that she is a member of the U.N. Student Alliance, an organization that follows pathways towards careers in the organization, students collectively try to solve world issues in a classroom-like setting.

Fitzgerald then reminded the audience that in a globalized world, making the world a better place through education, cultural dialogue are all achievable through education.

According to the U.N. website, the stated aims of the U.N. are similar to those of the IGU and that they promote and encourage respect for international law, security, economic development, social progress, human rights, civil rights and liberties, political freedoms and the achievement of worldwide peace and security.

The U.N. was founded in 1945, shortly after World War II, to re-establish the League of Nations and to prevent wars between countries and to provide a platform for global dialogue. Since its creation, the U.N. has expanded to include member states.
The outlook, April 17, 2013

LIFESTYLES

Perks of Joining Student Organizations: Traveling

ALEXIS CEPONIS CONTRIBUTING WRITER

VICTORIA JORDAN STAFF WRITER

From the moment a student walks onto the campus of Monmouth University, she is bombarded with flyers, emails, and verbal advice that stress the importance of involvement in student clubs and organizations. The overwhelming insistence can be a bit off-putting for some students who simply want to go to class and be done with their college experience.

If there is one thing we have learned during the past four years, it is that the need to be involved not only on campus but within your major is too crucial to put in words. We can easily tell you that joining a club or organization will change your experience and knowledge into what you are already studying. However, there are some exciting aspects of being a part of a group that you can travel the country.

As vice president of the Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA), I have been able to witness all the opportunities that we have had to travel outside of our state. We have traveled to Orlando, Florida, San Francisco, California, New York City, and Albuquerque, New Mexico for PRSSA National events.

The official chapter of PRSSA has given the University a more prominent presence on the national level during the past few years, and that is something that increases our overall credibility and membership,” said Sheila McAllister, faculty advisor of PRSSA.

Not only did attending these events allow us to network with other students and professionals, but they also gave us incredible opportunities to sightsee other parts of the country. Something that we would not have had the opportunity to do otherwise.

During the first week of April, we ventured cross-country to Albuquerque, New Mexico for the PRSSA National Assembly, the first National Assembly at which MU has ever been represented. In addition to attending the assembly, where we voted on the new board of directors, we got to sightsee and bylaws, we were able attend with what PRSSA has to offer. Experiencing an entirely new culture was the most exciting part of being a part of this huge event. We were able to share our experience with many other students from around the country as well.

“Meeting people from other PRSSA chapters is my favorite part of attending national events,” said Chris Bahrenburg from Virginia Tech University. “The environment of the conferences has helped us be more approachable to representatives from so many schools makes for such a fun experience, especially being in a different state and completely different culture.”

In October 2011, eight executive board members from our executive board, offers trips to places such as Boston and Philadelphia. Another recent trip was held by the Sociology Club as they visited the Tenement Museum in New York City.

If one is looking to add a new body part or is getting inked for the first time, sometimes finding the right artist and tattoo shop is the most crucial part. Some tattoo artists can create incredible art on the body, just by having a tattoo idea in mind, artists can really bring an idea to life.

Senior criminal justice major Greg Cenicola believes a tattoo should be thought out by the client rather than the tattoo artist. “My rule is print out a picture of it [the design] and hang it somewhere you will see it for a year,” Cenicola said.

“If you still love it, you’re good.” Cenicola, who already has one tattoo, is using this picture tactic as he prepares for his second tattoo. “I already have my next one picked out. It’s a version of St. Michael Angels, the archangel,” Cenicola said.

A few popular tattoo shops in the area include Ink Tattoos in Keyport, Eternal Tattoos in Howell, and Asbury Tattoo in Asbury Park. Keep in mind that different tattoo artists and parlors specialize in different styles and designs.

Make sure to do research before entering the tattoo parlor because the ink is often a rather expensive investment aside from it being permanent. Also remember that even though America has begun to embrace the tattoo culture, the inked look is not for everyone.

ATTENTION: FINANCIAL AID STUDENTS

If you have had a Federal Direct Subsidized/Unsubsidized Stafford Loan and will be graduating in May, July, and/or August 2013 and have not yet completed your Exit Loan Counseling please go to: https://www.studentloans.gov.

If your graduation date is incorrect, please contact the Financial Aid Office at (732) 571-3463 or via email at dorsey@monmouth.edu, or you may visit us in person in Wilson Hall, Room 108.

In today’s society, tattoos have become more acceptable. More recently, tattoos have emerged in the media through celebrities and even reality television shows. Tattoos have even come more acceptable in the workplace.

The art of tattooing has always been tied to both cultural and occupational values but not until recently, they were unacceptable in the workplace.

Origins of tattoos in the workplace date back to countries such as China and the Philippine Islands.

In China, convicts were inked so anyone passing by the bandit could easily spot them and immediately realize they were a criminal. The Philippine Islands had a more peaceful reason as they were inked in order to show political rankings in their tribes.

Even non-permanent tattoos have lasted throughout time. Henna and Mehndi tattoos, a dye derived from a plant used for temporary tattooing, were created in Ancient India and have continued to be popular amongst New Jersey schools makes for such a fun experience, especially being in a different state and completely different culture.”

In China, convicts were inked so anyone passing by the bandit could easily spot them and immediately realize they were a criminal. The Philippine Islands had a more peaceful reason as they were inked in order to show political rankings in their tribes.

Even non-permanent tattoos have lasted throughout time. Henna and Mehndi tattoos, a dye derived from a plant used for temporary tattooing, were created in Ancient India and have continued to be popular amongst New Jersey schools makes for such a fun experience, especially being in a different state and completely different culture.”

FABIANA BUONTEMPO STAFF WRITER

In today’s society, tattoos have become more acceptable. More recently, tattoos have emerged in the media through celebrities and even reality television shows. Tattoos have even come more acceptable in the workplace.

The art of tattooing has always been tied to both cultural and occupational values but not until recently, they were unacceptable in the workplace.

Origins of tattoos in the workplace date back to countries such as China and the Philippine Islands.

In China, convicts were inked so anyone passing by the bandit could easily spot them and immediately realize they were a criminal. The Philippine Islands had a more peaceful reason as they were inked in order to show political rankings in their tribes.

Even non-permanent tattoos have lasted throughout time. Henna and Mehndi tattoos, a dye derived from a plant used for temporary tattooing, were created in Ancient India and have continued to be popular amongst New Jersey schools makes for such a fun experience, especially being in a different state and completely different culture.”

FABIANA BUONTEMPO STAFF WRITER

As executive board members of the Public Relations Student Society of America (PRSSA), we are able to travel to many different opportunities that we have had to travel outside of state. We have traveled to Orlando, Florida, San Francisco, California, New York City, and Albuquerque, New Mexico for PRSSA National events.

The official chapter of PRSSA has given the University a more prominent presence on the national level during the past few years, and that is something that increases our overall credibility and membership,” said Sheila McAllister, faculty advisor of PRSSA.

Not only did attending these events allow us to network with other students and professionals, but they also gave us incredible opportunities to sightsee other parts of the country. Something that we would not have had the opportunity to do otherwise.

During the first week of April, we ventured cross-country to Albuquerque, New Mexico for the PRSSA National Assembly, the first National Assembly at which MU has ever been represented. In addition to attending the assembly, where we voted on the new board of directors, we got to sightsee and bylaws, we were able attend with what PRSSA has to offer. Experiencing an entirely new culture was the most exciting part of being a part of this huge event. We were able to share our experience with many other students from around the country as well.

“Meeting people from other PRSSA chapters is my favorite part of attending national events,” said Chris Bahrenburg from Virginia Tech University. “The environment of the conferences has helped us be more approachable to representatives from so many schools makes for such a fun experience, especially being in a different state and completely different culture.”

In October 2011, eight executive board members from our executive board, offers trips to places such as Boston and Philadelphia. Another recent trip was held by the Sociology Club as they visited the Tenement Museum in New York City.

If one is looking to add a new body part or is getting inked for the first time, sometimes finding the right artist and tattoo shop is the most crucial part. Some tattoo artists can create incredible art on the body, just by having a tattoo idea in mind, artists can really bring an idea to life.

Senior criminal justice major Greg Cenicola believes a tattoo should be thought out by the client rather than the tattoo artist. “My rule is print out a picture of it [the design] and hang it somewhere you will see it for a year,” Cenicola said.

“If you still love it, you’re good.” Cenicola, who already has one tattoo, is using this picture tactic as he prepares for his second tattoo. “I already have my next one picked out. It’s a version of St. Michael Angels, the archangel,” Cenicola said.

A few popular tattoo shops in the area include Ink Tattoos in Keyport, Eternal Tattoos in Howell, and Asbury Tattoo in Asbury Park. Keep in mind that different tattoo artists and parlors specialize in different styles and designs.

Make sure to do research before entering the tattoo parlor because the ink is often a rather expensive investment aside from it being permanent. Also remember that even though America has begun to embrace the tattoo culture, the inked look is not for everyone.

ATTENTION: FINANCIAL AID STUDENTS

If you have had a Federal Direct Subsidized/Unsubsidized Stafford Loan and will be graduating in May, July, and/or August 2013 and have not yet completed your Exit Loan Counseling please go to: https://www.studentloans.gov.

If your graduation date is incorrect, please contact the Financial Aid Office at (732) 571-3463 or via email at dorsey@monmouth.edu, or you may visit us in person in Wilson Hall, Room 108.
MUSICIANS WANTED
ATTENTION MEMBERS OF THE MUSIC ALLIANCE
AND ALL OTHER STUDENT MUSICIANS!

DON’T MISS THE CHANCE OF A LIFETIME TO PLAY GUITAR WITH A MUSIC LEGEND!

ROCK & ROLL HALL OF FAMER
ROGER McGUINN
COFOUNDER OF THE BYRDS

WORKSHOP & GUITAR CIRCLE
THURS. APRIL 18 AT 1 PM | WILSON AUDITORIUM
FREE FOR MU STUDENTS!
PLEASE CALL: 732.263.5715 TO REGISTER

SINGING THE BYRDS #1 HIT,
“MR. TAMBOURINE MAN”
MORE INFO AT WWW.MONMOUTH.EDU/ARTS

Summer Financial Aid

Once you have registered for classes, please go to www.monmouth.edu/summersessions to submit a financial aid application.

For additional information, please call the Financial Aid Office at 732-571-3463, or stop by the office in room 108 of Wilson Hall.

Address Your Stress

Wed, April 24
7:00pm–8:00pm
Mullaney Lounge
Relax and enjoy interactive techniques to decrease stress

Sponsored by Counseling and Psychological Services
For special accommodations, please contact us
prior to event at 732-571-7517

Movie Times:
1:00pm
3:00pm
8:00pm
11:00pm
2:30am-8:00am

April Movies on Hawk TV

Skyfall
Where The Wild Things Are
A Walk To Remember
Bio-Dome
Dazed and Confused
Schindler’s List

Tune in to Channel 12!
Boom Roasted Productions Make a Splash on Campus

ALEX CHASE
CO-ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR

A quality education is about more than what you learn in the classroom. Most students know that the key to getting your money’s worth out of your time at the University and making the most of your life in the real world, is by joining any clubs, activities and organizations that are related to your interests.

The students behind Boom Roasted Student Productions (BRSP) have been extremely successful in getting involved outside the classroom, most recently by putting on Almost, Maine, which ran on Sunday, last Friday and Saturday.

The group draws its name from an episode of “The Office”, during which Steve Carell’s character has a roast of the other staff members. This became an inside joke among the members of this campus organization and it is where it inspired the group’s name. As such, the audience is “Boom Roasted” by viewing a Roasted production.

Samantha Myers, English and secondary education major, is a member of the production group. “My best experience is working with everyone and being proud of all of us.”

“My fellow cast members are everyone and working on direction, we created an awesome play and I’m proud of all of us.”

Building off her experiences, Myers wants to continue to direct plays for whichever high school she works in after graduating.

Zoe Bulitt, sophomore theater and social work double major serves at the vice president of the group, helping to organize their work, relay information and reach out to important officials on campus. “This group as a whole has probably been my best experience here at Monmouth,” she said. “We are such a close group of people that have really taken this club far considering it is only our first year as an official club on campus. Every individual person really makes this group what it is.”

Bulitt went on to add, “We had read through this script before in our acting class last year and we were pretty stuck on what to do for this semester’s show.”

“Almost, Maine. has a lot of different roles to offer to the cast and has very reliable situations. Although at times it can be a little cheesy and not realistic (like for instance, one girl keeps her heart in a bag after it has been broken and turned to slates) it shows us the differences in every type of relationship and how any possibility could be going on all at the same time,” she added.

She also said that the group’s advisor, Maurice Moran, professor of theater, was instrumental in putting on a great performance. Though it was a student-run performance, Bulitt said his experience and vast knowledge made him the ideal faculty member to help the new production group create a successful, enjoyable experience. “You could not ask for a better advisor;” said Bulitt, adding “We really wouldn’t be doing any without the support of our community!”

Another dedicated member of the group is Gavin O’Cianáin, a theater major and study abroad student from Regents College, London. He runs props and played the roles of Phil and Pete in the show. “I would say the best thing about the process overall would truly be to have being gotten to know everyone in the cast and crew, and also having been exposed to the structure involved in doing a show at Monmouth,” O’Cianáin said. “I think all of the cast did an amazing job and it was such a nice experience to be welcomed into a supportive and focused group.”

“Having seen the work which has been done into the production and the focus which the group members have inspired to me to look further into developing something similar at my school or further down the line.”

Almost, Maine is just one of several Boom Roasted Productions events.

GAVIN O’CIANAIN
Study Abroad Student

Thrive and Chill: Abound in Dark Moon

NICK SEGRETOS
STAFF WRITER

Wha, there is another Luigi’s Mansion game? Yup! It has been quiet some time since the 2001 Gamecube hit and the last title hit stores and won quite a while since the Gamecube was on the market. Almost, Maine is sequel to the Nintendo 3DS. Dust off the electroscope and vacuum – it is time to go ghost hunting.

The original Luigi’s Mansion was released in 2001 as a launch title for the Gamecube. It was the first Mario game with Luigi as the main character and was a hit. It became re-released as a player’s choice favorite and is one of the best selling Gamecube game in the United States.

The plot of the game is pretty basic. Professor E. Gadd, from the first game, is working together with ghosts in the Dark Moon, the object that keeps the ghost in check, is missing and the ghosts go on a rampage. Gadd calls Luigi in through a television to help him solve the mystery.

Normally, I would complain that the plot is so simple that I could sum it up in one sentence, but since it gives us the excuse to explore haunted mansions with the younger Mario brother, I could not care less.

The graphics are very nice, especially for a portable game. Nintendo is really pushing the envelope for what the 3DS can do. Not only are the graphics good, but the dark and spooky look from the Gamecube classic stays strong in the sequel. I am always a sucker for scary atmospheres, be it legitimate horror or the Scooby Doo style, so the game already had me interested on that fact alone.

The controls of the new game are a bit different and take some getting used to. Since the 3DS only has one control stick, things have changed. Walking around is just fine, as are examining objects and moving the camera. However, using the Poltergust 5000, the vacuum to that is designed to capture ghosts, works differently.

When you are using the vacuum, you can either use the B and Y buttons to move it up or down, or the motion sensors of the 3DS. That is perfectly fine, and I like that the game is taking advantage of the system’s technologies to its fullest extent. Unfortunately, you cannot aim the vacuum left or right in this game. That is a bit of a disappointment as the direction is not radically different and impossible to comprehend.

Another gameplay difference is the选址 which the group members have inspired to me to look further into developing something similar at my school or further down the line.”

Almost, Maine is just one of several Boom Roasted Productions events.

As for actually capturing ghosts, things work a bit differently than in the original. Instead of one big mansion, there are several smaller haunted houses that Luigi must explore to find the fragments of the dark moon.

I think it would have been cooler if Nintendo named this game Luigi’s Mansions, but that is a different story.

Each area has a certain theme to it. For example, one building is a theme of a haunted house within a forest theme. This one, like me, definitely check this game out.

That is the line on the fine line of changing the gameplay up a bit without changing it so much that it becomes unrecognizable. It takes a minute to get used to, but the Nintendo’s direction is not radically different and impossible to comprehend.

Another gameplay difference is how you navigate. Instead of one big mansion, there are several smaller haunted houses that Luigi must explore to find the fragments of the dark moon.

I think it would have been cooler if Nintendo named this game Luigi’s Mansions, but that is a different story.

Each area has a certain theme to it. For example, one building is a time themed area while another is a forest themed house. Also, much like the original, the sequel features a lot of treasure hunting and building high on a gem.

A difference between Dark Moon and the original is that the mansions are also broken up by missions. You go to each mansion several times to complete various tasks, much like many other portable games.

It breaks the game up enough so that you do not find yourself in some long, complicated part with save points while an issue in real life has to be dealt with.

It is one of the perks of portable gaming and it was smart of Nintendo to implement it.

Dark Moon also features a multiplayer mode called Scare-Scraper (I love that the ghost puns are still being used). There are a couple of modes in which multiple players team up to conquer the haunted tower. These are nice additions and add a good amount of replay value to an already enjoyable game.

In summary, I am not disappointed yet, I really like this game. For the last few years, I had really started to lose interest in playing video games. Until I was introduced to Dark Moon, I could not care less.

In short, if you are a fan of the original Luigi’s Mansion like me, definitely check this game out; it is worth it.
The days of buying physically packaged music at a small, independent record store may seem long lost. But in the past few years, many music enthusiasts have raised awareness and support for independent record stores through music industry events in the digital age of music.

According to the RSD website, “Record Store Day was conceived in 2007 at a gathering of independent record store owners and entrepreneurs as an event to spread word about the unique culture surrounding over 700 independent record stores in the US and thousands of similar stores around the world.”

Record Store Day exclusive- ly, independent record stores are provided with limited edition vinyl and CD releases from hundreds of popular and obscure music acts and pressing pressing pressing pressing record labels for that day specifically. Along with special releases, many record stores also hold a number of other festivities, including sale specials, meet-and-greets, cook-outs, and more, according to the RSD website.

The first official Record Store Day took place on April 19, 2008 and featured only 10 special Record Store Day releases and was a black and white experience, you a terrible feeling,” said Andrew. “I’m assuming it was before he met Jason Friedberg and Aaron Seltzer, who made such box office bombs like Meet the Spartans and Scary Movie. I’m impressed with these two. Honestly, I am. Out of the six writers, the first two Scary Movie screenwriters, which were actually kind of funny, these two are known as being the least funny. Despite the fact that they’re only ones that have gone on to make other movies.

For more on Matt Kenyon and his body of work, these interested can check out www.swamp.com.

Doug Cirroni, 19, from Morristown, N.J., said that the Record Store Day experience opened his eyes to all the music lovers in his town. “It was very unexpected,” Doug said. “It’s easy to forget how much music can do for you.”

As exciting as it was, Doug mentions that the experience did come with its frustrations. While waiting on line, Doug adds that “You hear people talking about stuff that you also wish you could go to, and you have to make yourself know that it’s not worth it.”

Of course, the worst sting, according to the Cirrinos’ comes with missing out on an exclusive you wanted that sold out. “There’s the obvious let-down that ensues when you’ve been waiting to get an item you wanted sold out before you even got into the store. That really is a terrible feeling,” Kenyon said.

To prevent this, Cronin makes few suggestions to customers to prevent disappointment, like arriving at the store early and knowing exactly what you want before you get there. The popularity of Record Store Day no doubt has to do with the sales of the limited edition vinyl and CD releases, which is seen as something of a retro treasure for music lovers. At one point, he had a funny joke that he was to the point of not saying this either. Marlon Wayans, say Lohan and Mike Tyson, celebrities that could very well be funny, say Lohan and Mike Tyson, celebrities that could very well be funny.

The days of buying physically packaged music at a small, independent record store may seem long lost. But in the past few years, many music enthusiasts have raised awareness and support for independent record stores through music industry events in the digital age of music.

According to the RSD website, “Record Store Day was conceived in 2007 at a gathering of independent record store owners and entrepreneurs as an event to spread word about the unique culture surrounding over 700 independent record stores in the US and thousands of similar stores around the world.”

Record Store Day exclusive- ly, independent record stores are provided with limited edition vinyl and CD releases from hundreds of popular and obscure music acts and pressing pressing pressing pressing record labels for that day specifically. Along with special releases, many record stores also hold a number of other festivities, including sale specials, meet-and-greets, cook-outs, and more, according to the RSD website.

The first official Record Store Day took place on April 19, 2008 and featured only 10 special Record Store Day releases and was a black and white experience, you a terrible feeling,” said Andrew. “I’m assuming it was before he met Jason Friedberg and Aaron Seltzer, who made such box office bombs like Meet the Spartans and Scary Movie. I’m impressed with these two. Honestly, I am. Out of the six writers, the first two Scary Movie screenwriters, which were actually kind of funny, these two are known as being the least funny. Despite the fact that they’re only ones that have gone on to make other movies.

For more on Matt Kenyon and his body of work, these interested can check out www.swamp.com.

Doug Cirroni, 19, from Morristown, N.J., said that the Record Store Day experience opened his eyes to all the music lovers in his town. “It was very unexpected,” Doug said. “It’s easy to forget how much music can do for you.”

As exciting as it was, Doug mentions that the experience did come with its frustrations. While waiting on line, Doug adds that “You hear people talking about stuff that you also wish you could go to, and you have to make yourself know that it’s not worth it.”

Of course, the worst sting, according to the Cirrinos’ comes with missing out on an exclusive you wanted that sold out. “There’s the obvious let-down that ensues when you’ve been waiting to get an item you wanted sold out before you even got into the store. That really is a terrible feeling,” Kenyon said.

To prevent this, Cronin makes few suggestions to customers to prevent disappointment, like arriving at the store early and knowing exactly what you want before you get there. The popularity of Record Store Day no doubt has to do with the sales of the limited edition vinyl and CD releases, which is seen as something of a retro treasure for music lovers. At one point, he had a funny joke that he was to the point of not saying this either. Marlon Wayans, say Lohan and Mike Tyson, celebrities that could very well be funny, say Lohan and Mike Tyson, celebrities that could very well be funny.

The days of buying physically packaged music at a small, independent record store may seem long lost. But in the past few years, many music enthusiasts have raised awareness and support for independent record stores through music industry events in the digital age of music.

According to the RSD website, “Record Store Day was conceived in 2007 at a gathering of independent record store owners and entrepreneurs as an event to spread word about the unique culture surrounding over 700 independent record stores in the US and thousands of similar stores around the world.”

Record Store Day exclusive- ly, independent record stores are provided with limited edition vinyl and CD releases from hundreds of popular and obscure music acts and pressing pressing pressing pressing record labels for that day specifically. Along with special releases, many record stores also hold a number of other festivities, including sale specials, meet-and-greets, cook-outs, and more, according to the RSD website.

The first official Record Store Day took place on April 19, 2008 and featured only 10 special Record Store Day releases and was a black and white experience, you a terrible feeling,” said Andrew. “I’m assuming it was before he met Jason Friedberg and Aaron Seltzer, who made such box office bombs like Meet the Spartans and Scary Movie. I’m impressed with these two. Honestly, I am. Out of the six writers, the first two Scary Movie screenwriters, which were actually kind of funny, these two are known as being the least funny. Despite the fact that they’re only ones that have gone on to make other movies.

For more on Matt Kenyon and his body of work, these interested can check out www.swamp.com.

Doug Cirroni, 19, from Morristown, N.J., said that the Record Store Day experience opened his eyes to all the music lovers in his town. “It was very unexpected,” Doug said. “It’s easy to forget how much music can do for you.”

As exciting as it was, Doug mentions that the experience did come with its frustrations. While waiting on line, Doug adds that “You hear people talking about stuff that you also wish you could go to, and you have to make yourself know that it’s not worth it.”

Of course, the worst sting, according to the Cirrinos’ comes with missing out on an exclusive you wanted that sold out. “There’s the obvious let-down that ensues when you’ve been waiting to get an item you wanted sold out before you even got into the store. That really is a terrible feeling,” Kenyon said.

To prevent this, Cronin makes few suggestions to customers to prevent disappointment, like arriving at the store early and knowing exactly what you want before you get there. The popularity of Record Store Day no doubt has to do with the sales of the limited edition vinyl and CD releases, which is seen as something of a retro treasure for music lovers. At one point, he had a funny joke that he was to the point of not saying this either. Marlon Wayans, say Lohan and Mike Tyson, celebrities that could very well be funny, say Lohan and Mike Tyson, celebrities that could very well be funny.
Features

April 17, 2013

The Outlook

WESLEY BROOKS
STAFF WRITER

Just in a couple of short weeks, the lottery selection process for the 2013-14 academic year will be upon University residents. Just after the relaxation of the housing lottery system, returning to emails with a random selection is not something people want to do. For some, the decision was easy; a roommate got a low number and housing selection week is over for the day; to others, day to day choice could not come any sooner.

Carolyn Taylor, a former resident assistant (RA), said, “The lottery system is not fair. It will not be a spot and they will have to hurry and find something of the size they want.”

This almost was the case for sophomore Courtney Carr. “I got a bad number in the 500s but someone was able to pull me into Redwood Hall, but at the last minute it was Carr. Numbers in the double digits, however, do not guarantee the spot some may want or have in mind.

Sophomore Briana Dunlap said, “I was only able to get into two triples in Redwood but was able to get a room in Oakwood with my friends.” She added that this worked out better for her and her roommates later in the year.

There are some students who live with a couple of friends, but will be forced to move in a suite with seven or eight others next year. Deanna Lukas is in her first lottery process and is hoping for Spruce, but is concerned who some of her new roommates will be. “I got a number in the 600’s, but only have three others who I want to live with. I may find out selection day who the others will be because it is random.”

Waiting until the last minute to avoid being assigned can provide some anxiety. There are students who need specific accommodations, but as Erin Kenney, disability specialist said, “With students who are in a single room (as there is a different procedure), all students must go through the process and I encourage roommates to call others in case using the chance of getting the request.” This helps even the playing field, despite difficulties.

For students who want a different roommate, residential life holds a “roommates wanted” social to help with this. Kristen Harz considered going for the reason of filling up a suite with people she knew. “I got a number in the 300s, but would prefer a room in a suite with people I know.”

Harz. Students with lower numbers can pull their friends to fill up a room or suite helping with this. Numbers with high numbers, the housing selection system

Student with low housing lottery numbers can pull their friends into a room or suite.

The Secret to a Spicy Résumé

DANIELLE RAKOWITZ
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Your resume is the first and last impression an employer will have of you. You have three seconds to grab the employer’s attention, so don’t waste it. Instead of using vague generic phrases, treat to amp up your resume can help you land that job.

Resumé. Are your personal work experience, academic accomplishments, and extracurricular activities the building of this nation.

While the intentions for this ban may be progressive ones, the question remains as to how effective this language will be. Because immigrants were subject to assimilation practices in the past due to their supposed inferiority, the stigma of them being less than the average citizen was very prominent. This stigma unfortunately like all prejudices- is a formidable challenge to overcome, even today in a society where race is relatively tolerant.

Language is not the primary basis for discrimination. More than anything, all types of discrimination stem at the heart of thought—or lack of rational thought, rather. History is all too familiar with a population thought capable of driving humanity to madness.

On the other hand, although it is much easier to discuss all the ways that immigration has affected the United States, the more productive way to look towards any positive message of immigration is to Professor of communication, Shannon Hokanson said, “Personal experience and the language and it dictates the way that we perceive. I think that language is important and it absolutely may not immediately impact perceptions of immigration, but I think it’s useful to start legislation with language.

Whether or not this language ban will alter human thought is still up for debate. The capability and possibility for progress should never go unheard. Essentially, steps toward said progress, no matter how small, are the only way forward.

Certain words in the English language have, for centuries, contributed to this phenomenon. The language have, for centuries, contributed to cultural and uncivil sentiments towards those living in the United States without proper documentation. Therefore, this action was supposed to destroy our enfranchised associations and might be ignoring the bigger picture of the system. This lack of recognition fails to associate justified sentiments towards immigrants, who are an essential component in the building of this nation.

Incorporating creative tricks and jargon and overwriting. Assistant Dean of Career Services, William Hill advised, “Have an Objective statement. Avoid general statements. Tweak the job fit to the job and be specific as you can. Write ‘seeking a position in the financial services industry, having that connection can be useful. ‘Taking on a second language can be resourceful when being compared to other students who are handing in their resumes.

I took two courses of Spanish and can now add that to my resume as a quality for employees to see,” junior Alex Mariano said. Proofread and make sure everything matches. Do not just rely on spell check. Indentations should be aligned, the font should be the same, and the layout should be identical. Keeping it sleek and organized will make it easier for the employer to read as well as looking professional.

Finally, visit the career services office. There are people willing to take the time to sit down with you, look over your resume and give you advice.

And the Winning Numbers for Campus Housing Are...

Lottery Numbers Have Been Distributed, Residential Students Await Their Selection Day

Danielle Rakowitz

I live with friends so living in a suite would go smoothly,” said Lukas.

This year Leming has housing lottery number nine and is excited to have one of the first picks and plenty of options.

A professor who wishes to re- move students with high numbers, the housing selection system allows students an equal chance by making the process random and fair for all students living on campus.

When in contact with others, use a professional e-mail. Google, Yahoo, and Hotmail are all free websites that you can create a mailing address with.

Get involved. Providing any clubs, extracurricular activities, sports, volunteer work and fraternity, sororities and fraternities that you are a part of can show your time management skills. Incorporating a language is practical as well. With different cultures evolving all over the world, having that connection can be useful. ‘Taking on a second language can be resourceful when being compared to other students who are handing in their resumes.

Your Name

[objective]

Place your objective description here. Some examples of objectives you may include in your resume are: looking for job-related experience, or to advance your career.

[education]

[Consecutive College] Degree is Major

[employer] Company Title

[address]

City, State

[additional info]

Talk about your present and future role that you have done. Talk about your present and future role that you have done. Talk about your present and future role that you have done. Talk about your present and future role that you have done. Talk about your present and future role that you have done. Talk about your present and future role that you have done.

[degrees]

Bachelor's Degree

[awards]

[personal info]

[references]

[school]

[company]

[projects]

[additional skills]

[working with the suite would go smoothly,” said Lukas.

This year Leming has housing lottery number nine and is excited to have one of the first picks and plenty of options.

A professor who wishes to re- move students with high numbers, the housing selection system allows students an equal chance by making the process random and fair for all students living on campus.

When in contact with others, use a professional e-mail. Google, Yahoo, and Hotmail are all free websites that you can create a mailing address with.

Get involved. Providing any clubs, extracurricular activities, sports, volunteer work and frater-
Love Bytes: Meeting the People Behind the Profile

ERIN MCMULLEN
STAFF WRITER

Since it’s creation, the Internet has had an unbelievably large impact on the every day lives of millions of people. In more recent years, the invention of the Internet has also provided us with a handful of different ways to interact with other people from all over the world, all from behind the screen of a computer.

Social media sites such as Facebook and Twitter allow ease, and it seems done in person have migrated to convenience. It seems that many of Psychology at the University, relationships. Dr. Gary Lewandowski, the face of dating over the years, but the rest of the work for you.

Dating sites in existence according to Online Dating Magazine. They’re always basically the same: create a profile, post photos of your self, answer a handful of questions regarding your interests, goals and hobbies and then the website does the rest of the work for you.

And now that much of the United States’ population have started using smartphones, there are countless of different ways to interact with android devices that work the same as these online dating websites. These websites and smartphone applications have changed the face of dating. People have been lucky enough to enjoy a strange twist on relationships.

Singles are more frequently using mobile dating apps on their smartphones that allow them to connect with others who are within their vicinity at any time.

Although Tinder is a lot simpler than most other dating applications and websites, it still puts a strong twist on relationships. According to Mollie, “I think everyone perceives these apps and websites differently, depending on how serious they take them.” Many of those who are registered users of specific websites tend to use them for entertainment reasons while others may actually be looking for someone to get to know. It all depends on the person, and the dating service, as well. Lewandowski said, “The ones that have the most potential benefits are the ones that emphasize getting to know the other person first. The ones that emphasize more superficial features are much less helpful.”

Those who are not as serious will use an application like Tinder, and those who are seriously interested in starting a relationship may create a profile on eHarmony.

Overall, dating websites and smartphone apps are usually criticized for their services, but as long as you’re careful of what you post and what you believe about other people, there really is nothing wrong with using them. If it helps you find the love of your life, there should be no shame in using one.

TAYLOR MANTHEY
STAFF WRITER

Nowadays, many would agree it would be difficult to live without their cell phone, something created to be fast and convenient with the ability to satisfy business or work related matters and entertainment all in one. What more could you ask for? Email, Internet, camera/video and music are just a few applications that come as a standard with most cell phones these days.

“All I need is my iPhone. If I have that, then I’ve got all I really need for school, work, you know, whatever,” said senior Casey Pavechek. Although we have become so accustomed to using our cell phones for just about everything and anything, the rapid growth of technology and the advancements on celular devices caused a negative effect amongst our society? Are cellphones beginning to take over without us even realizing it? I’m sure we’ve all experienced or been a part of those “rude” moments like texting at the dinner table or checking Facebook during class, but the distraction is just too hard to ignore sometimes. The applications for smartphones are endless; coupon savers, games, puzzles, or- ganizers, banking and credit card statements, the list goes on.

Everyday I use an application called Tinder that, according to its description in the Apple App Store, “Anonymously finds out who likes you nearby, and connects you with them if you’re also interested.” This particular app seems to be popular among the younger crowd, mostly college students like Mollie and Dan. Although neither of them plan on meeting up with anyone they match with, Tinder, they both continue to use it. “It was flattering to know that guys ‘liked’ me, and I got a good laugh out of some of the things that they would message me,” Mollie explained. Dan enjoyed it for the same reason, “It’s fun to find people that like you back,” he said.

Many of those who are registered users of specific websites tend to use them for entertainment reasons while others may actually be looking for someone to get to know. It all depends on the person, and the dating service, as well.

Although, I am not as serious when it comes to meeting someone, I feel like I need to keep my head on straight. Some of the apps that I’ve used have helped me find potential partners, especially if I’m feeling like I need to get out and meet people. I’ve had a few dates, but I’m finding it more irritating when you see people using your phones when you know they really shouldn’t be. For instance: seeing your waiter use their cell phone, off a corner when you’re out and waiting for a drink, or a sales associate checking out your merchandise at a store. This has happened to Pavechek on multiple occasions. “You’re being held up when they’re getting paid to work, that doesn’t seem right does it? Quite frankly, that really pisses me off,” Pavechek shared. So when is it appropriate or inappropriate to use your phone?

“I don’t really think that’s a hard one. Use it on your own time, not during work, or class, or when you’re out to eat and waiting for a drink, or a sales associ- ate checking out your merchandise at a store. This has happened to me on multiple occasions. Whatever it is, you know you shouldn’t be on your phone, c’mon,” Pavechek answered.

The rapid growth of technological advancements has caused some of us to lose common courtesies when it comes to our cell phones; during class, while we are working, out at restaurants or even while shopping. Although we have been lucky enough to enjoy these accommodating developments, perhaps we have become less aware of our manners and too distracted by other things, or one thing can do many things, I should say.

From Pinterest, Facebook and PowerPoint slides to emails, graphs and charts, even down to the law of common courtesy. It’s important we stay mindful of when it is appropriate and inappropri- ate to use our cell phones.

Be aware and respectful of other people’s time and simply fol- low the law of common courtesy. It’s important we stay mindful of when it is appropriate and inappropri- ate to be on our cell phones. If you're going to be on your phone in public, then at least have enough decency to use it at times when you know you aren't affecting the people around you.

Let's face it, it's easy to become attached to our cells, but when you know it's time to put it away, do everyone a favor and just put it away.
Christina Grothues
Staff Writer

Delta Phi Epsilon hosted their second annual ANAD Vigil in the Rebecca Stafford Student Center on Sunday, April 14, to bring awareness to the University about the overwhelming impact that eating disorders can have.

Marissa Mieskin, senior member of Delta Phi Epsilon, said, “The media portrays an eating disorder as something superficial, but it is not. By hosting events like this, the impacts of eating disorders become a reality.”

Casey McCabe began the vigil with some facts about anorexia nervosa and other eating disorders.

According to the ANAD website, “An eating disorder is defined as an unhealthy relationship with food and weight that interferes with many areas of a person’s life. A person who struggles with an eating disorder can have unrealistic self-critical thoughts about body image, and his or her eating habits may begin to disrupt normal body functions and affect daily activities.”

McCabe introduced the five women who would share their personal stories.

The first person that shared her experience was Madelyn Mauter, a member of Zeta Tau Alpha. Mauter started out by thanking Delta Phi Epsilon for giving her the opportunity to share her story. Mauter said that her battle began by her being sent, “starting to diet, cutting out meals, and exercising excessively.”

Mauter described how in her personal situation, everything happened so quickly and she felt like it was happening to her, “in the blink of an eye,” and that “her new best friend was her eating disorder.” Mauter shared that she had come to a point where she refused to let the disorder control her life anymore. “It was really hard for a while,” said Mauter. “Now I am living for the first time. I am always going to have to remind myself that the image that I see in the mirror is not the person that rest of the world sees.”

Next, Kristi Hunt, a junior on campus known for her remarkable singing talent and member of Alpha Xi Delta, stated that she hoped that people would be able to connect with her as she shared her emotional experience. Hunt explained that the perspectives of people around us are not always true. Hunt said, “The words fat, ugly, and disgusting have followed me my whole life.”

She explained how she would tell her high school friends that she had not eaten in days and they congratulated her and verbalized that they wished that they could do the same. “This is a disease that affects both men and women. It can affect anyone.” Hunt’s road to recovery was hard. “Every day is a battle, but I am a million times stronger than I was last year,” said Hunt.

Speaking third, Kelly Chapman, said, “It is not unusual for an individual with an eating disorder to lie to friends and family to hide the severity of the disease.” Chapman’s own personal experience included purging and starving herself which led to panic attacks and depression. “I never even thought I had a problem,” said Chapman. Chapman pleaded, “If you are struggling with anything, get help as soon as you can. It is not worth the lost time and memories.”

Marissa Mieskin began her struggle in the third grade and throughout her struggle she was sent to a rehabilitation clinic. “That whole portion of my life seems surreal. I lost my friends. I never had a high school experience.” Mieskin said, “That voice telling you that you are not good enough will never go away, but I know that for me, happiness takes work. I know change is hard, but by sharing my story, I am helping others and bettering myself. I deserve to be loved.”

Lastly, Jessica Jurinich, a volunteer coordinator at Project HEAL and an eating disorder victim advocate and recovery speaker, spoke about how she raised funds and awareness for the cause. Jurinich said, “I know firsthand what it feels like to be a prisoner to the disorder.” At 14, Jurinich was a competitive gymnast who struggled and created the perfect storm for an eating disorder. “Spending time in hospitals made me numb. I would think about everything and analyze how I could exercise more and eat less. I would exercise in the bathroom at the hospital and attempt to find pins to poke holes in my IV.”

Jurinich concluded by pleading, “I urge you, do not let it get that bad. Rock bottom is when you finally realize that the disorder has consumed you’re whole life.”

Victor Nazario, president of Greek Senate, said, “Mental diseases like anorexia nervosa are real and are evident on our campus. These types of disorders are never spoken about, but events like this bring light to situations. This gathering could be the factor to get the ball rolling and keep it rolling.”

As the event came to an end, McCabe said, “Thank you to all the beautiful women who had enough courage today to share their stories and thank you for the organizations that exist to help anyone suffering from these types of diseases.”

The National Anorexia Nervosa and Associated Disorders Association is one of Delta Phi Epsilon’s philanthropies. Besides hosting an annual vigil, Delta Phi Epsilon also fundraises and raises awareness for ANAD.
Alpha Omicron Pi joins University’s Greek Community

New Sorority to be Officially Initiated on April 28

CHRISTINA GROTHUES
STAFF WRITER

Alpha Omicron Pi is the University’s newest addition to Greek life, and with 71 new members this sorority is quickly paving the way into the Greek community.

In the 2011-2012 academic school year, the Monmouth Panhellenic community agreed to expand and the process of finding a perfect fit for the University. Jon Buchalski, Assistant Director of Student Activities for Fraternity & Sorority Life, said, “The process started by any Nazarene and alpha Omicron Pi alumni,” said McMullen. Next, a group interview conducted by the Panhellenic community is thrilled to see Alpha Omicron Pi take place in February. Erin McMullen, freshman and new member of Alpha Omicron Pi, said, “The whole process was way cooler than that of formal recruitment.

“They were a few interesting moments that you could just kind of get a feel for what Alpha Omicron Pi was all about, and then if you liked what you saw, you could sign up for a dinner that was given by some of the Alpha Omicron Pi alumni,” said McMullen. Next, “I have been personally fallowed into a presentation about AOII which you would have been willing to commit to. I think we’re helping the sorority thrive in more ways than we probably ever realize.”

The Greek community is so excited to welcome Alpha Omicron Pi to Monmouth. Phi Kappa Psi, Theta Xi and Sigma Pi welcomed Alpha Omicron Pi to campus with fresh flower bouquets.

“This new organization has already brought so much positive energy to our campus,” said Renee Oleiniczak, active president of Phi Sigma Sigma. “The Panhellic community is thrilled to see so many girls join in the lifelong bonds of sisterhood.”

The Monmouth University Enactus team is partnering with the Long Branch School district in celebration of Earth Month to bring awareness about the importance of recycling. The Monmouth University team is already back to work after their recent trip to the Enactus Regional Conference in New York.

“The team has come up with a way to spread awareness about the importance of recycling. The Enactus team has put together a competition where the students from A.A. Anasasia elementary School will compete against each other to see who can raise the most recycling. The competition will start on Earth Day, which is Monday, April 22nd, and end on that Friday, April 26th. At the end of the week the class that collects the most recyclables will receive a pizza party for their efforts.

The Lowes Charitable and Educational Foundation joined together with the Enactus LNA organization in order to encourage and promote community awareness. The foundation sent out an application for a $2000 grant for a Community Impact project that would be given to 50 schools where Enactus was a part of that institution.

“[Enactus] Partners with Local Schools for Earth Month

JEVAUGHN HUGGINS
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

The University was one of the 50 schools in the country to receive the grant and now will be using the funds provided to put together a community awareness event.

“It was surprising, seeing as though there are so many other larger universities nationally. It shows how much of our work is really being recognized,” said Vice President of Operations Jimmy Nguyen. Secretary of the Enactus Monmouth University team Kandria Ledesma and active member Kristen Flynn met with Long Branch District Administrator of schools Gary Penta last month to discuss with him the potential partnership that the Enactus team will have with the Long Branch School District.

“[Enactus] Partners with Local Schools for Earth Month

enactus partners with local schools for earth month

KANDRIA LEDESMA
Secretary of Enactus Team

The University was the one of 50 schools in the country to receive the grant and now will be using the funds provided to put together a community awareness event.

“He [Gary Penta, District School Administrator] was really excited that the University could come and have an impact on the younger generation of students in the community.”

The University could come and have an impact on the younger generation of students in the community.”

KANDRIA LEDESMA
Secretary of Enactus Team

Enactus with Local Schools for Earth Month

PHOTO COURTESY of Alpha Omicron Pi

The week-long event will kick-off with the Enactus team giving a presentation to the students about the importance of recycling and the competition itself. The student will be sent home with giveaways and gifts which will serve as reminders about recycling. Also, student will be sent home with letters to their parents detailing the competition and how they can get their children excited and how they themselves can get involved too.

“We have concluded that not will the direct impact be on the students participating in the recycling competition, but the indirect impact will be that of the parents who will try and help their children win,” said Meneses when asked about his thoughts on the potential impact that this event can have.

For students interested in The Enactus Monmouth University team and wanting to get involved in this project or upcoming projects, there are meetings held very Monday at 6:00 pm on the second floor of the student center. You could also contact the Enactus team via email Sfe@monmouth.edu.

Alpha Omicron Pi will officially be initiated as a chapter on April 28. The sorority was founded at Barnard College in 1897 and is currently more than 150,000 members strong.
Is a college degree necessary for success?

COMPiled BY: ALEXIS ORLACCHIO

Sara
sophomore

“Yes. In today’s world they’re the only way you can get a decent paying job.”

CJ
senior

“Yes, absolutely. The economy is terrible and it’s hard enough to get a job.”

Emily
senior

“I think it is. The job market is competitive. The better your education, the better off you are.”

Jazmin
senior

“I think success is personally subjective. But for me, yes it is.”

Lisa
junior

“I think it is. It has become the norm now, you can’t get by on a high school education anymore.”

Nicole
senior

“I think it depends on your definition of ‘success.’”

Katelyn
sophomore

“I want to be a teacher, so I’d say yes.”

Tara
senior

“Yes. What job would you be able to do without one? There’s so many more jobs and opportunities available to you.”

Christine
Credential Officer

“As course. Education is never a waste.”

Patrick
junior

“Of course, that’s how you get all the high paying jobs.”

AVEYOU, your unique Beauty Boutique, was created to bring together the finest hair, nail, skin and body care products from all over the world.

Stop in with your Monmouth ID to receive 20% off your entire purchase!

Follow us on social media for beauty updates, events, and free giveaways.

Located about a mile from campus

FREE Chic Sheets hair refreshing towelettes ($12.50 value) with Monmouth ID

AVEYOU Beauty Boutique
280G Norwood Ave.
Deal, NJ 07719
(732) 531-1988
Call us for makeup applications!
We Sell:
Cheesesteaks, Salads, Buffalo wings, TexMex food and Burgers
Open until 11 AM to 4 AM 7 Days a week!
Phone:
732-923-1101 or 732-923-9237
10% off for MU Students!
(must show valid ID)
Online orders available.
Delivery charges subject to your location
We accept Visa, Master Card, American Express, and Discover.

Animals: Our Moral Schizophrenia and Veganism as a Moral Baseline presented by Gary L. Francione

Where:
Magill Commons Club Dining Room
Monmouth University

When:
Sunday
April 28th
1:00 PM

Gary L. Francione is a distinguished Professor of Law at Rutgers University, acclaimed author of numerous books, and founder of The Abolitionist Approach. There will be a vegan potluck at this event.

Hosted by the Monmouth Area Vegetarian Society
RSVP to mcharris@monmouth.edu

Want your advertisement in The Outlook?

(732) 571-3481
outlookads@monmouth.edu

Nelly’s Grill & Pizzeria

www.nellyspizza.com

We Sell: Cheesesteaks, Salads, Buffalo wings, TexMex food and Burgers
Open until 11 AM to 4 AM 7 Days a week!
Phone: 732-923-1101 or 732-923-9237

10% off for MU Students!

get $5 off
an order of $30 or more
Expires April 30th 2013

Lunch Special 11am - 3pm
Sunday through Thursday
Buy one slice and get one slice 1/2 OFF slices must be the same kind
Expires April 30th 2013
Sexual Assault Awareness Month

Upcoming Campus Events

APRIL 17
I Want My Jacket Back Workshop 11:30am - 1pm, Magill 108/109
Workshop with artist/activist Jenn Freitag

I Want My Jacket Back 6 - 7:15pm, Woods Theatre
Live performance by artist/activist Jenn Freitag. Explore new ways to think and talk about gender violence.

APRIL 25
Denim Day at Monmouth 11am - 3 pm, Student Center Patio
Learn about interpersonal violence and make a donation to support the New Jersey Coalition Against Sexual Assault (NJ/CASA) and/or drop off a pair of gently used jeans for local agencies supporting survivors.

APRIL 1
Relationships: The Good, the Bad and the Ugly
1 - 2:30pm, Wilson Hall Room 104
Attorney Monica Gural, Supervisor of the Domestic Violence Representation and Youth Law Projects at Legal Services of NJ will present frank information about relationships and how to stay safe.

Walk a Mile... 3 - 4pm, Wilson Hall Steps
Join the Monmouth Community as we walk together to end interpersonal violence.

Supported by Gender Studies, The Office of Student Activities, Counseling and Psychological Services, Legal Services of NJ, 1800: Turning Lives Around.

For special accommodations or questions, please contact us at 732-571-7517 prior to the programs.

MONMOUTH UNIVERSITY
WHERE LEADERS LOOK FORWARD
To get the advantage, check the week rating: 10 is the easiest, 0 the most challenging.

♈ Aries • (Mar. 21 - April 19) - This week is an 8
There are some dangers in taking on more than you know you can handle. Your eyes might be a little bigger than your time, not to mention the stress you are surely adding. Take a moment to shift your action plans and think a little more creatively. Avoid the distractions and you will go far.

♉ Taurus • (April 20 - May 20) - This week is an 8
Resist the temptation to spend that well-earned cash. Concentrate on generating more income instead of depleting what you already have. Don’t let this completely dominate your time though. Save some time for enjoyment, particularly with a loved one; this time together is worth gold.

♊ Gemini • (May 21 - June 21) - This week is a 9
Money may buy power but that’s not the only way to get it. Recharge your batteries by focusing on what you love and what you are passionate about, it is through there that you will find the right path to what you desire. Just remember that achieving the impossible sometimes takes a little longer.

♋ Cancer • (June 22 - July 22) - This week is an 8
You’re feeling rather saucy this week, but don’t take yourself too seriously hot-stuff. You’ll get yourself to the next level if you remain lighthearted and maintain a bit of humor. Take regular breaks; even the strongest individuals need a rest from time to time.

♌ Leo • (July 23 - Aug. 22) - This week is an 8
Grow your mind through concentration and meditation, for new information threatens your old assumptions. Reevaluate the situation but don’t let yourself get stressed out over the whole thing, and avoid getting a love one all stirred up. Clean up messes immediately and things will go smoothly.

♍ Virgo • (Aug 23 - Sept. 22) - This week is an 8
New responsibilities lead to changes at home. Save opinions and any good advice until solicited. However by simplifying matters and reassessing priorities you will be able to focus more concisely. Also rallying family support behind you will aid in any ongoing matters.

♎ Libra • (Sept. 23 - Oct. 23) - This week is an 8
Don’t waste a cent, for a change in plans is required, especially when conditions are unstable. Don’t be stopped by past failures or see take things too personally. Keep in mind that whatever you lose now, you can always replace in the future. With that in mind, do not hesitate and go off to explore the unknown.

♏ Scorpio • (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21) - This week is a 7
Expect a certain change on the financial front, but despite that remember that some of the best things in life are free. Entertaining also doesn’t have to be expensive, especially when it’s a collaborative effort. Stick to the basic proven methods and you will see that with some steady steps you will be just fine.

♐ Sagittarius • (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21) - This week is a 9
Feelings are running deep. Adopt another perspective in order to increase your understanding and authority over the situation. Learn how to do so from an adversary and show that you understand through action rather than word.

♑ Capricorn • (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19) - This week is an 8
Make quiet inroads and find out what is really going on. Streamline your production and remain tuned in on the task. Don’t leave before you are sure that the job is done right, and just keep in mind that new facts dispel old fears.

♒ Aquarius • (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18) - This week is an 8
Gather information and schedule carefully! Things are piling up all around and one false move could result in a tumble. Practice with your tools and watch for any hidden trips. Also take care to avoid somebody else’s argument; you already have enough on your plate.

♓ Pisces • (Feb. 19 - Mar. 20) - This week is an 8
Cool down a scandal before it escalates any more. Listen to all of the considerations in order to get the whole story and figure out the right way to proceed. You will soon see clearly what all of the fuss is about and the disagreement about priorities; all you have to worry about for now is turning down the heat in these volatile times.
Softball Sweeps La Salle and Central Connecticut

THADEUS RICHARDS  SPORTS EDITOR

The softball team is starting to build momentum as they notched wins in all four games they played this week at home. Double headers against La Salle University and conference foe Central Connecticut State University.

"I think they like their own facilities," said Head Coach Lori Bernt. "They don't have to go far to get some practice in, once that first pitch is thrown and the game starts it's all about playing the game."

MU took the field for the first time of the season on Friday against La Salle University at 3:00 p.m. an absolute gem, commanding the strike zone throughout the contest leading to the complete game seven strikeout rout.

The Hawks got on the scoreboard in the first inning when sophomore Shannon Fitzgerald was able to score on a 1-0 lead. Sophomore catcher Kyle Perry followed with a double to left to score Fitzgerald. In the second inning, second baseman Nick Wilgus and shortstop Jake Gronsky both scored off a sacrifice bunt as the Hawks took a 2-0 lead. In the third inning, the Hawks scored two runs off a wild pitch by the Seahawk's pitcher and a single by sophomore Matt Saverio to extend their lead to four. Saverio struck out looking on a full count to end the inning.

With two on, Stewart singled down the left field line plating both Perry and Gronsky. Prior to the opening game, the Hawks held a 14-0 record leading up to the sixth and 0-1 when trailing in the sixth. MU once again prevailed with the win, the score 6-2, and Marcinkowski defeated the Hawks.

MU gained the lead in the fifth as the team scored three runs off of the two doubles by Perry and Perret walking two men on the mound for the Hawks in the final two innings. Perry and Perret managed to get a second out in the seventh inning. The Hawks scored three runs on two singles by BrandonRentzel and future senior shortstop Jon Guida's single to score Perret from third. Guida bunted up and down the line in the seventh when he doubled to center scoring senior right fielder Joe Bamford, who got a walk. The Hawks then doubled up to score the fifth when Perret scored on a throwing error by Seahawks' shortstop Yunginger.

Even though the Hawks' offense was working on all cylinders, they lead one runner on base in every inning except for the sixth in the ninth when they scored the winning run.

Men's Tennis Tops Sacred Heart

KYLE WALTER  CONTRIBUTING WRITER

The men's tennis team beat visiting Sacred Heart (SHU) 5-2 on Saturday afternoon. The Hawks improved their advantage in the season series against Sacred Heart to 3-2 with the match at 6-3 Friday, April 12. They improved the Hawks overall record to 7-6 and even their conference record to 1-1.

"It was nice to put it all together to day and get a victory over a qual ity team," said former Head Coach Cory Hubbard. "It was nice to put it all together to day and get a victory over a qual ity team."

Partners Ramy Bekheit and Fred Juniper won the first set off to a good start when they won the first doubles match 8-3, but SHU then responded with an 8-1 victory over Joe Ta lafos and Jason Rabinow in the second doubles section. In the deciding match for the doubles, Jan Prezner and Jason Rabinow earned a hard-fought 8-4 victory and gave the first point of the match to the Hawks.

In the singles portions of play, John Lopresti of SHU shot out a 6-0, 6-0 victory. Shadi Alwan was even at the match at 1-1, but then responded with a double headed in the final two, while the Hawks were 8-4 and 3-2 in conference.

Pierce's match was a grueling battle as he was facing a 7-5, 5-2 deficit in the first set, but then drop the second and fall behind early in the tie break only to win seven straight points and earn the victory.

When asked about Pierce's match, Hubbard said, "I think when Eric [Pierce] saw Ramy Bekheit with the victory for us his energy dropped a little bit, but I told him he had to pick it back up and use this match to get better, and he was able to recover crucial hit for MU, this time to start the game as she brought in Deter to give the Hawks a first inning 1-0 lead. A 2-run scoring was once in the first, though, as a Weiser single brought Dusans in and then a double from senior Christie Scher extended the lead to 3-0 before the inning ended. The Blue Devils answered quickly with an Elyse Rzentel in the second inning and an error by Deter allowed Rentzel to score their first run of the double header. Then in the third inning a home run by Kate Sizel-Smith cut the lead to one run for MU.

"I think they like their own facili ties," said Head Coach Lori Bernt. "They don't have to go far to get some practice in, once that first pitch is thrown and the game starts it's all about playing the game."

MU took the field for the first time of the season on Friday against La Salle University at 3:00 p.m. an absolute gem, commanding the strike zone throughout the contest leading to the complete game seven strikeout rout.

The Hawks got on the scoreboard in the first inning when sophomore Shannon Fitzgerald was able to score on a 1-0 lead. Sophomore catcher Kyle Perry followed with a double to left to score Fitzgerald. In the second inning, second baseman Nick Wilgus and shortstop Jake Gronsky both scored off a sacrifice bunt as the Hawks took a 2-0 lead. In the third inning, the Hawks scored two runs off a wild pitch by the Seahawk's pitcher and a single by sophomore Matt Saverio to extend their lead to four. Saverio struck out looking on a full count to end the inning.

With two on, Stewart singled down the left field line plating both Perry and Gronsky. Prior to the opening game, the Hawks held a 14-0 record leading up to the sixth and 0-1 when trailing in the sixth. MU once again prevailed with the win, the score 6-2, and Marcinkowski defeated the Hawks.

MU gained the lead in the fifth as the team scored three runs off of the two doubles by Perry and Perret walking two men on the mound for the Hawks in the final two innings. Perry and Perret managed to get a second out in the seventh inning. The Hawks scored three runs on two singles by BrandonRentzel and future senior shortstop Jon Guida's single to score Perret from third. Guida bunted up and down the line in the seventh when he doubled to center scoring senior right fielder Joe Bamford, who got a walk. The Hawks then doubled up to score the fifth when Perret scored on a throwing error by Seahawks' shortstop Yunginger.

Even though the Hawks' offense was working on all cylinders, they lead one runner on base in every inning except for the sixth in the ninth when they scored the winning run.
The Hawks (9-6; 7-0) came back and defeated Quinnipiac (5-8; 3-3) on Friday afternoon at Kesseler Field. The Bobcats scored a late goal on a free position shot to bring the 9-4 lead into halftime.

MU started off the second half with a goal to take the lead 5-4. Sophomore attacker Meghan Haggan scored the first one and it was the third one in a row for the Hawks from forward 111. Savona scored her second of the game.

Savona had just over 24 minutes to play, Quinnipiac’s Lianne Toomey tied the game at six. After that, it was a back and forth battle. Savona scored her third goal of the game and put MU in front for good.

Gibbons scored two straight goals during a 5-0 stretch by the blue and white. Savona put away one of the players, and junior attacker Kaitlyn Treble scored the final goal of the game.

Sophomore Emily Barbieri tallied three goals and four assists in the women’s lacrosse team’s two wins this weekend.

Rutgers continued from p.1

bounced throughout the Rutgers Athletic Center, often containing angry fans. Our University’s men’s basketball Head Coach Mike Rice expressed his frustration with the actions of his critics and the recent decisions have put him in a bind with the program. According to the Associated Press, Coach John Wolf have resigned from practice this week. Coach John Wolf have resigned from the university.

However, he expressed, “If you are a parent of a 5-year-old child, you deserve to be fired for those actions.”

The video first surfaced, Athletics Director Tim Pernetti, Assistant Coach Jimmy Marziano weighed in with a tweet: “If my school sports media want to treat them the way that he did in Rutgers, they must be reprimanded by the school’s decision to fire Rice. The Head Coach, Mike Rice, is the first to obtain and air the video was extremely violent,” she said.

However, she said, “Since I’m an athlete, I see any of my coaches as an authoritative figure. If I am not executing the drill or play properly, I can expect my coach to be upset and put me where I need to go with force.”

Ed Waite, a senior communications major and men’s basketball player at the University said, “Some coaches are tough and you have to be able to deal with some of the things that they say.” However, after watching the video, he believes that the school was justified in firing Rice. If faced with a similar situation, Waite said, “My scholarship would be on the line so I would probably keep it to myself.”

Seven Straight Wins for Women’s Lacrosse

The Hawks (9-6; 7-0) came back and defeated Quinnipiac (5-8; 3-3) on Friday afternoon at Kesseler Field. The Bobcats scored a late goal on a free position shot to bring the 9-4 lead into halftime. The Hawks responded by going on a run of their own to tie the game. Sophomore midfielder Alasthion Stathis and Gibbons scored within a minute of each other to cut the lead. Sophomore midfielder Alasthion Stathis and Gibbons scored within a minute of each other to cut the lead. Gibbons scored two straight goals during a 5-0 stretch by the blue and white. Savona put away one of the players, and junior attacker Kaitlyn Treble scored the final goal of the game.

Savona scored her third goal of the game and put MU in front for good. Gibbons scored two straight goals during a 5-0 stretch by the blue and white. Savona put away one of the players, and junior attacker Kaitlyn Treble scored the final goal of the game.

Sophomore Emily Barbieri tallied three goals and four assists in the women’s lacrosse team’s two wins this weekend.

The Hawks played Sunday as the team hosted Missouri on senior day with a 12:00 pm start. MU dismantled Sacred Heart (5-9, 4-4) in 23-20. The Bobcats committed 16 turnovers as the Hawks controlled the game. Head Coach Denise Wescott was happy with how the team played. The Bobcats were not able to get the lead back and were down by one every time in the second half. The Bobcats were unable to hold on to a lead that was never in doubt.

The Bobcats were happy with the defensive performance, “I was amazed at how well our defense performed. Everything they tried at us straight goals overall for the last 23 minutes of the game. Savona scored first, and then Dean scored a goal from a free position. MU started off the second half with a goal to take the lead 5-4. Sophomore attacker Meghan Haggan scored the first one and it was the third one in a row for the Hawks from forward 111. Savona scored her second of the game.

Savona had just over 24 minutes to play, Quinnipiac’s Lianne Toomey tied the game at six. After that, it was a back and forth battle. Savona scored her third goal of the game and put MU in front for good. Gibbons scored two straight goals during a 5-0 stretch by the blue and white. Savona put away one of the players, and junior attacker Kaitlyn Treble scored the final goal of the game.

Sophomore Emily Barbieri tallied three goals and four assists in the women’s lacrosse team’s two wins this weekend.

The Hawks played Sunday as the team hosted Missouri on senior day with a 12:00 pm start. MU dismantled Sacred Heart (5-9, 4-4) in 23-20. The Bobcats committed 16 turnovers as the Hawks controlled the game. Head Coach Denise Wescott was happy with how the team played. The Bobcats were not able to get the lead back and were down by one every time in the second half. The Bobcats were unable to hold on to a lead that was never in doubt.

The Bobcats were happy with the defensive performance, “I was amazed at how well our defense performed. Everything they tried at us
The softball team has won its last six games, including sweeps last week against Wagner College, La Salle and Central Connecticut, and has moved into third place in the Northeast Conference. Lauren Sulick (pictured above) was named NEC Pitcher of the Week this week after pitching back-to-back shutouts.

Full Story on page 22